REDS HAND THREAT TO BRITISH

Lengthy Jury Huddle Said Not Unusual

Judge Not Yet Excited About Time Taken By Sheppard Trial Panel

CLEVELAND (AP)—For the fourth consecutive day, the jurors in the Sheppard murder trial went back into conference this morning.

Although they show no signs of being near a verdict, the presiding judge said the situation was not unusual.

If they remain deadlocked today, Judge Edward Blythin can ask the foreman how the jurors stand. And if he is told there is no hope of agreement, he can discharge them. This would necessitate another long and expensive trial for Dr. Samuel Sheppard, who is accused of murdering his wife.

Judge Blythin said this morning he does not consider it unusual that the jury is taking so much time. He added:

"If they were convinced they could n[illegible], they would speak up, but [illegible] not had a single question [illegible]munication from them."

THE JURORS took the case at 10:13 a. m. last Friday. When they were excused last night, they had been together nearly 56 hours, and actually deliberating in the jury room just over 24 hours.

Sheppard himself looks pale, drawn and unutterably weary.

The state alleges that he killed his wife last July 4. His relations with other women, the prosecution argued, prompted the crime. Thus, the charge is first degree murder. Conviction of the charge would carry a mandatory death sentence unless the jury recommended mercy.

Sheppard steadfastly denies any guilt. He says a prowler broke into his home while he was asleep and beat his wife, Marilyn, to death. She was pregnant at the time.

Under Ohio law, a prisoner must be brought from his cell to the courtroom every time the jury recesses for meals or for the night. Thus, Sheppard has confronted them eight times since they began deliberating his fate. They went to dinner last night shortly after 6 o'clock, and were excused from the usual night session.

Each time, Sheppard hopefully

2 Sailors Held In Girl's Death

MIDDLETOWN, R. I. (AP)—Pretty Margaret Louise Blanchette, 16-year-old Sunday school teacher, was raped and strangled in the rear seat of a moving automobile yesterday—a deed for which two sailors are being held.

Frederick B. Zimmer, 25, of Rochester, N. Y., a metalsmith 1.C., was charged with murder.

Seaman Clyde D. Brunfield, 18, also of Rochester, N. Y., was charged with being accessory.

Police said Zimmer admitted he struck and strangled the Portsmouth, R. I. girl "when she began to scream" during the attack. The two sailors had volunteered to drive the girl home from a pre-Christmas dance at the enlisted men's club at the big naval base in Newport.

Spokesmen For Foundations Label Probe Report 'Biased'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for several foundations have hit back with such terms as "biased" and "flimsy" at a House committee report accusing the giant taxfree groups of promoting a socialism of "far greater menace" at home than communism.

The report was issued last night over the signatures of the three Republicans on a special five-member committee headed by Rep. Reece (R-Tenn). One of them, Rep. Goodwin of Massachusetts, dissented from many of the conclusions, including the one that the foundations promote socialism.

Representatives Wayne L. Hays of Ohio and Pfost of Idaho, the two Democratic members, filed a blistering dissent attacking the 416-page report as a "crackpot" view by persons suffering from "fear sickness."

The report signed by the GOP members pictured the nation's big foundations as comprising an "interlock" and "an intellectual cartel" which, it declared, wields tremendous leftwing power over the nation's thought and policies.

The 12-page opinion by the Democrats declared the investigation was dominated from the start by a "theme of prejudgment" against the foundations "like the theme of doom in a tragic opera."

Hays recounted that the committee's 16 stormy public hearings last May-June were abruptly called off by the GOP majority after only one profoundation witness had taken the stand.

He said he believes it might be a good idea for the new Democratic-controlled Congress to hold a set of hearings for the foundations to present their side of the case.

The lengthy GOP document ticked off a long list of names of organizations and individuals in connection with the alleged foundation-influenced "network."

Mentioned most often were the country's big three among fund groups: the Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation, several Carnegie groups, and what it called "offshoots" of the big three.

Among Carnegie organizations named were the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the Carnegie Corp. of New York.

The GOP report also assailed the New York Times, the New York Herald Tribune and the Washington Post and Times Herald, which it said had connections with foundations and had criticized the investigation. The latter two newspapers said statements made in the report were not true.

H. Rowan Gaither Jr., president of the Ford Foundation, said the Reece investigation was "biased from start to finish" and that the report's authors apparently "regard as unAmerican every man, idea or institution with which they happen to disagree."

Dean Rusk, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, he said, while other portions "alleged to be directed at us are simply untrue."

President Joseph Johnson of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace said he would have no comment until he studied the document.

The New York Times said it would have no comment.

Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, editor and president of the New York Herald Tribune and president of the Reid Foundation, termed "false" the report's criticism of the foundation including charge it was set up by her late husband Ogden M. Reid as "a business

Veteran's Case Seen Spur For Blood Turnout

Anyone in doubt about the merits of the Red Cross blood program can be reassured by reading the article on the back page of today's Herald.

It tells the story of Clarence Boyer, of Circleville, who was wounded during the Korean fighting and has since had 21 blood transfusions. As one highly qualified to talk on the subject, he tells how much the anonymous blood donations meant to him in Korea—and how, in truth, they represented the margin between life and death.

The story of the Circleville veteran comes as preparations are being made for the last visit of the bloodmobile to Pickaway County for this year. The unit will be at the Methodist Church in Circleville next Thursday.

It will be open for blood donations from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Leaders of the blood program have asked for special efforts in behalf of the coming visit of the bloodmobile because the date will be only two days before Christmas. Many will be unable to visit the bloodmobile, they fear, because of pre-Christmas obligations.

Consequently, all those who can donate Thursday are urgently asked to do so.

Man Accused Of Slaying 3 Kiddies, Wife

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Harold R. Oilar's wife and three children sang Christmas carols and went to bed. A few hours later, say police, Oilar killed them with a Boy Scout hatchet.

Police and a neighbor early yesterday found the 39-year-old rug merchant unconscious from gas fumes, in an apparent suicide attempt, in his $25,000 home.

He was booked on suspicion of murder in the prison ward at the County General Hospital, where attendants said he is expected to survive. Detectives said that during questioning he muttered: "It can't be real. I've had a bad dream."

Police Lt. Wayne Bornhoft said Oilar's daughters Janet, 10, and Martha, 7, a cripple, were found with blankets over their heads, as was the son Randolph, 12, who was killed in his own room. Oilar's wife Grace Elizabeth, 39, a Sunday school teacher at Pasadena Presbyterian Church, was found dead in the master bedroom. Police said all had apparently died without a struggle, possibly in their sleep.

Neighbors described Oilar as "deeply religious." Beside him in the fume-filled bathroom were pictures of his family, taped to the walls, and a note saying:

"Only God understands. Only God can forgive.'

Another note said: 'Sell out everything to pay debts." Dr. Robert Rayburn, a neighbor, said Oilar was 'greatly in debt"

Town Apologizes For Traffic Fines

PARK HILLS, Ky. (AP) — This small community a few miles south of Cincinnati is apologetic when it fines you for a traffic offense.

"Park Hills doesn't want your money," the motorist is told in a letter handed out by Police Judge R. G. Grayson. "You need it for paying rent, buying food and doing all the things that cost more money today.

"Your money is taken from you only because you violated the safety laws—because you did something which the records show kills people—the 864 dead from traffic violations in Kentucky in 1953."

Legion Plans Show For Toys Thursday Night

Arrangements are being completed for a special "Toy Show" to be sponsored by the Circleville American Legion Thursday night in Memorial Hall.

A percentage of the proceeds will be used to buy toys and other gifts for the children of needy families in Pickaway County. The event Thursday night will be in addition to the Legion's "Toy Tour", already held here to round up second-hand toys for children facing a bleak Christmas.

Special guests at the Legion's gathering will be those who attend the Christmas Party planned earlier the same day at the Pickaway County Children's Home. The children and their guests will be admitted free.

The party at the children's home was made possible by anonymous donors when they learned that the children were anxious to give a party for other local children "in less fortunate circumstances." This gesture by the children at the home has drawn widespread praise as one of the year's best examples of the real Yuletide spirit.

THE LEGION'S entertainment Thursday will start at 8 p. m. Included in the program will be an Indian dance, Duke Hall the magician, and Jocko the Clown.

It will be the first event of this kind to be sponsored by the Legion. All those interested in the event should phone James P. Shea at 351.

Pope Preparing Brief Message

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Ailing Pope Pius XII is working on a brief Christmas message he will broadcast to the world over the Vatican radio at noon Friday.

On Christmas Day he plans to appear in the window of his study and bless a throng gathered below in St. Peter's Square.

Observers took the announcement as a new evidence of the pope's gradual improvement from the illness that threatened his life 18 days ago. It will be the pontiff's third radio message since his collapse Dec. 2.

Hammarskjold Ready For Trip Into Red China

Peiping Radio Quotes Chinese Judge On Case Of 11 U.S. Fliers

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold announced last night after a meeting with Communist China's ambassador to Sweden that he still plans to leave for Peiping sometime after Dec. 26, but the exact date has not been set.

As Hammarskjold conferred at a luncheon with the envoy, Gen. Keng Piao, Peiping radio broadcast further legal arguments against the release of the 11 U.S. fliers China is holding as spies.

The radio quoted a brief by a Chinese judge that the Korean armistice applied only to the North Koreans and the Chinese "volunteers" in Korea, not to the Chinese peasants and police the broadcast said had captured the airmen.

An official announcement from Hammarskjold said his 2-hour discussion with Keng was on practical matters concerning his mission to China. The secretary general will seek the release of the American airmen and all other U. N. personnel still held by the Chinese since the Korean War.

U. N. PRESS Chief Wilder Foote said details of Hammarskjold's China trip would be announced as soon as they have been settled.

He said no further meetings were planned with the Chinese before the secretary general's return to New York tomorrow.

The Peiping broadcast yesterday quoted Mei Ju-ao, a Chinese justice at the Japanese war crimes trials after World War II, as saying the case of the American fliers had nothing to do with the Korean armistice because the truce applied on the Communist side only to prisoners captured by the North Koreans and Chinese "volunteers."

This fitted in with China's contention that she officially was not involved in the Korean War.

The radio declared the fliers "were captured by Chinese peasants within Chinese territory west of Antung in Liaoning province (Manchuria)." The United States maintains they were downed in North Korea and taken to China after their capture.

Pocket Knife Surgery Aids Man

CHICAGO (AP)—An X-ray technician whose heartbeat was restored after emergency pocket knife surgery Friday still faced a fight for life today.

Lutheran Deaconness Hospital reported 24-year-old Stanley Wisniewski is still in critical condition. He collapsed to the X-ray darkroom floor three days ago and heart massage and other procedures kept him alive until his heart resumed normal beating 2 hours and 15 minutes later.

When Wisniewski suffered a heart attack, a hastily summoned surgeon made an incision with a pocket knife and began massaging his heart. Oxygen was administered and the patient was moved to an operating room where therapy and forced breathing supplemented heart massage.

Sparkman Says Democrats Can Top Ike On Home Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala) said today Democrats can defeat President Eisenhower in 1956 if they write a "responsible record" on domestic issues in the 84th Congress.

Sparkman, the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, said he expects that Democratic cooperation with the President on foreign policy and national defense will largely eliminate them as campaign issues.

"We Democrats can defeat Eisenhower or any other Republican nominee by writing a responsible record on domestic problems, by showing what a Democratic Congress can do," he declared.

"When the people vote their natural instincts, the Democrats always win. The Republicans win only when they can upset this natural inclination, as they were able to do in 1952.

"Since then, the Republicans have been destroying the confidence which the people temporarily transferred to them. They have destroyed it by not being able to carry out the promises they made in the campaign, promises which they knew they couldn't carry out.

"The Republicans promised to balance the budget and to cut spending, among other things. Instead, they are spending 2½ billion more than President Truman did in his biggest year and the budget remains out of balance.

"I don't condemn the Republicans for this spending because I think it is necessary to build up our defenses and to join in mutual security aid to other free countries, but they had no business making promises they knew they couldn't keep."

Sparkman predicted a return of the 1952 contest which pitted Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson against Eisenhower.

Sparkman said that so far as he personally is concerned, he isn't a candidate for second place on the ticket.

Deputy Quits Post In Auditor's Office

Verna M. O'Hara submitted her resignation Monday as a deputy in the office of Pickaway County Auditor Fred L. Tipton, effective January 1.

Mrs. O'Hara said she did not wish to explain her action "at this time.' In a statement added to her one-sentence letter of resignation, she said:

"I feel the time has come when it is best that I resign my position in the county auditor's office, for more reasons than one. I do not wish to comment further at this time.

"However, as of this date, I am requesting that a state examiner come here as soon as possible to clear me officially in reference to the job I have held for seven years and one month.'

THE LATTER reference by Mrs. O'Hara was to the fact that she is bonded as a deputy and wishes to have her connection with the auditor's office formally ended.

Mrs. O'Hara's resignation came close on the heels of the appointment of Mrs. Mary McFarland as chief deputy in charge of the office. The appointment was announced Saturday by Tipton, who is convalescing at his Williamsport home from a long illness and major operation.

The auditor plans to return to his regular duties in the courthouse early next year. Meanwhile, he explained, Mrs. McFarland would be in charge and also represent him on the budget commission.

The commission is expected to start its annual hearings shortly after Christmas.

Mrs. O'Hara had previously been authorized to sign papers for the auditor when necessary to facilitate the work of his office. However, Tipton explained this was only in her capacity as deputy clerk for the Pickaway County commissioners.

Tipton, by virtue of his office, acts as clerk for the county commission. Hence his work in this respect has been handled recently by Mrs. O'Hara.

Real Winter Arrives Here A Day Early

CHICAGO (AP)—Winter does not officially arrive until tomorrow, but it felt like it today.

Bitter cold lay over the eastern part of the United States with freezing weather extending into the central gulf states.

And many midwestern states were mantled in snow—one to two inches over most of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Iowa; five to 10 inches in Wisconsin and Michigan.

In most of the rest of the nation, temperatures were rising and readings well above normal for this time were reported in the Northern Plains and northern Rocky Mountains. But Pellston, Mich., recorded 15 degrees below zero.

South Bend, Ind., off the south end of Lake Michigan, got 16 inches of snow in 24 hours.

A pool of cold air lying just west of the Continental Divide resulted in sharp temperature contrasts in Montana. Cutbank and Great Falls, basking in mild Pacific air flowing down the east slope, reported 45 and 42 today. Helena and Butte reported 10 degrees and 3 degrees.

5 Aged Patients Die In Home Fire

NEW ORLEANS, L.A. (AP)—Flame raced through a home for the aged last night and burned five patients to death.

Fifteen others scampered out of the one story frame building, with the physically able dragging the infirm with them. Two patients were taken to Charity Hospital.

Cause of the fire was not determined but Sidney Chase, the 14-year-old boy who discovered the smoke, said it started near the burning gas heaters in the patients' section. The boy is the cousin of the manager, Mrs. Charlene Chalk.

How Would You Write Definition For 'Democracy'?

CINCINNATI (AP)—If you had to write a definition of democracy and couldn't think of one, who would you ask?

Jan Jones, 17-year-old senior at Cincinnati's New Woodward High School, had that problem and she turned to the governor of the state, Frank J. Lausche.

Here's the answer he penned:

"Democracy to me means the unimpaired right to use my individual ability; to fully enjoy my creative powers whether manual or intellectual while at the same time according to all other fellowmen a similar right limited only by the restriction that my deeds fall within the category of moral propriety.

"Democracy means to me that I shall have untrammeled right to speak, write, worship God and enjoy fairness and justice at the hands of my government.

"It means further that what I create shall be mine and that it will not be taken away from me resulting in a destruction of my spirit and my willingness to produce for the good of mankind."

Doctor Planning To Resume Smoking

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dr. Elmer Hess, president-elect of the American Medical Assn., admits he has quit smoking but says he's going to resume.

In a radio broadcast yesterday he said he stopped using cigarettes last year "not because I am afraid of cancer of the lungs but because I was coughing my head off. I'm still coughing and I haven't been happy since I quit smoking."

Scientists have differed as to the effect, if any, of cigarette smoking on lung cancer.

Russia Fights Against West German Pact

London Is Given Same Warning As Kremlin Hurled Against French

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia today threatened to scrap the British-Soviet Mutual Assistance Treaty if the Paris agreements to rearm West Germany are ratified.

This warning was in a note handed to British Ambassador Sir William Hayter by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the Foreign Ministry.

The text of the note was not immediately available but it was understood to be similar to a note given France last Thursday threatening abrogation of the French Soviet treaty.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry called a news conference for this evening and it was believed the text of the note would be made public then.

The British-Soviet treaty, designed to run for 20 years, was signed May 26, 1942.

It is a treaty of alliance and mutual assistance aimed against "Hitlerite Germany."

The two nations pledged themselves to help rebuild Europe on the terms of the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic Charter, to negotiate with no German government that failed to renounce aggression, to avoid alliances directed against each other and to take "common action to preserve peace and prevent aggression in the postwar period."

Ambassador Hayter returned to his post here on Saturday after several weeks in Paris and London for consultations.

Burke To Get Large Refund On Recount

COLUMBUS (AP) — Thomas A. Burke will get back nearly half the more than $68,000 he posted for a recount in the U. S. senatorial election race in 25 counties.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said refunds totaled $33,664 from 24 of the 25 recount counties. Allen County still has to report, Brown said.

Burke posted more than $68,000 at the rate of $10 a precinct to recount 6,827 precincts. He actually posted more than the number of precincts indicate, Brown said. Some precincts designated by Burke were non-existent, the secretary explained.

The recount cut the winning margin of Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) from more than 6,000 votes to 2,970 over Burke, his Democratic opponent.

Most counties charged Burke only the statutory minimum of $5 a precinct for the recount. Burke also got refunds of his entire $10 from 219 precincts where he gained at least four per cent on the recount above the official total for the Nov. 2 election.

Checks May Tell Cause Of Death

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Sheriff's detectives believe Louis Magyar's traveler's checks may tell what led the 60-year-old Cleveland man to the lonely desert spot where he apparently met his death.

Receipts for $200 in American Express checks were found near the scattered human bones which authorities think are the remains of the retired carpenter. Magyar's wallet was located nearby.

An American Express special agent was expected in Las Vegas today to help trace where Magyar cashed the checks. His dealings in Las Vegas may tell what he was doing and how he died.

The jurors' faces have settled into a wooden blank when they come into court.

"I've never seen a jury like this one," a court officer said. "Usually, some hint slips out, maybe just a remark, or some little thing that tells you how it's going.

"But not these people. Once outside that jury room, they talk about everything in the world except this case. You can't even tell whether anybody is mad at anybody else, which is always a sign."

The trial lasted nine weeks. Because it has been so long and costly authorities are anxious to avoid a retrial, if possible.

Sheriff's Office Holds Suspect For Robbery

A suspect being held by the sheriff's department here is thought to have some knowledge of the Spur Station robbery and kidnapping in Circleville last week.

The suspect was taken to the London prison farm Monday morning for a lie detector test. Authorities said results of the test showed that although the suspect may not have actually taken part in the crime, he allegedly did have some criminal knowledge of it.

The suspect has been identified by Mack White, the attendant who was robbed and taken for a ride, as closely resembling one of the three men who took part in the robbery. White was able to pick out the suspect from a four-man lineup.

Sheriff's deputies were continuing their investigation. White is the father of Deputy Sheriff Carl White.

MEANWHILE, city police released a suspect they had picked up. That suspect was also given a lie detector test. He too was thought to have some knowledge of the crime.

But he was released after questioning when no further proof could be uncovered.

question in Western diplomatic circles in Moscow about when the British would get their notice.

Some diplomats observed the Russians should be consistent and denounce their pact with Britain also—especially in view of the fact that the British House of Commons had already approved the rearming of West Germany.

This was made even more emphatic in Moscow after French Premier Pierre Mendes-France remarked on the inconsistency in a radio broadcast Saturday night.

Most observers believed that the Russian threat at the French was aimed at influencing the Paris vote on the West German issue. Mendes-France has a very slim majority in parliament.

In Paris, Mendes-France told the French National Assembly today that the United States will contribute about $400 million in 1955 to the economic and military buildup of South Viet Nam.

Pleading with the deputies to support him in a vote of confidence later today on his Indochina policy, the premier said that in his talks here last weekend with U.S. Secretary of State Dulles he had ironed out many details of the two country's cooperation in the Far East.

The debate and vote on Indochina, which Mendes-France was expected to win by only a small majority, delayed start of the Assembly debate on the bitterly disputed Paris treaties to rearm West Germany.

DULLES ARRIVED in Washington today from the North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Paris, which he said has made "very important decisions unanimously and in good spirit."

Dulles, in an off-the-cuff statement, said he was glad he had had the opportunity in Paris to talk with British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and Mendes-France.

"That enabled us to exchange views on a good many matters," Dulles said.

"We did not try to make any decision, but it brought our thinking in line and was very useful."

Divers Trying To Salvage Sunken Plane

NEW YORK (AP)—Navy divers today tried to place two crane lines around the sunken fuselage of the Italian airliner in which 26 persons died Saturday.

Working with a 35-ton floating crane, they hope to free the fuselage from four or five feet of mud at the bottom of Jamaica Bay and then ease it in one piece 1,500 feet to the shore of Idlewild Airport.

Six persons survived the crash of the Rome-to-New York plane which, coming in low over the water, hit a navigational pier and broke into sections.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, which has been checking the crash near Idlewild Airport, scheduled closed preliminary hearings today.

Investigators said the plane apparently struck the end of a 2,000-foot pier with its tail as it approached the airport through rain and mist. Officials said the pilot, Capt. Guglielmo Algarotti, 52, who had missed three earlier radar-guided approaches to the field, was warned he was coming too low.

A veteran transatlantic flier, he was among the victims.

Alabama Youth Admits Murder

BRINKLEY, Ark. (AP)—A 19-year-old Alabama youth who has admitted he swung the club which crushed the skull of pretty Mrs. Milton Fuller is in an undisclosed Arkansas jail today, waiting to be charged with first-degree murder.

Billy Ray Willingham, who left a 16-year-old wife in Alabama, said hunger drove him into the unpretentious Fuller home, and that a weird urge spurred him into killing the young mother.

Mrs. Fuller was found dying early Dec. 12 in her blood-spattered bedroom. She had been hit once with a four-foot stick of firewood. The blow crushed her skull.

Yates Co. Ads In Herald Rated Best Example By Big Agency

The Circleville Herald and the Yates Buick Company have been accorded high recognition in a special, nationwide tribute to effective advertising methods.

The Kudner Agency, Inc., one of America's foremost advertising firms, has asked permission to reproduce on a national scale two ads prepared by the Yates firm in cooperation with The Herald's advertising department. The agency, which has offices across the country, plans to use the ads in connection with a Buick used car merchandising program.

Having appeared first in The Herald, the ads will be displayed as a example of effective used car advertising.

The two ads selected by the Kudner agency as having special merit were printed as part of a series which has drawn wide attention to the Circleville firm, located at 1220 S. Court St. In one of them, headed "Yesterday or Tomorrow", D. A. Yates touches briefly on the long record of his Buick agency and the high caliber loyalty it has been able to build up among its customers.

THIS AD, in part, reads:

'In 1906 I sold my first merchandise when my father owned the Yates Hardware on West Main St. Today I still have eight of those people who bought from us 48 years ago as customers.

"Since my connection with Buick 18 years ago, we have 178 customers who have purchased from two to nine Buicks. We also have many used car repeat customers. We think that is a fairly good record.

"The products we have sold were good and we backed them up with service. . . . .

"We are extremely proud of our present clientel. They have helped us thru many a tough spot and we acknowledge our appreciation. But a business can not live on yesterday.

"It must look to tomorrow and so our thoughts are set on just how we can improve our service to you . . . . .It is impossible to bat 100 percent on service, but we try!"

IN THE OTHER ad selected for special notice, the local dealer anticipated the doubt in a prospective car buyer's mind as follows:

"You might want price or equipment or construction or style or reputation or many other items. Please let me say we think we can show you whatever you desire in a new Buick if you will give us a chance to compare."

Concluding this advertising appeal was a list of some of the outstanding credits the Buick manufacturers can claim, and another reminder that "whatever you buy must be backed by service."

Continuing Housing Probe Being Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala) proposed today a "continuing and objective study" of the operation of government housing programs but said he would oppose any probe designed to "drag out a lot of dead carcasses."

Sparkman, a senior Democrat on the Senate Banking Committee, spoke out in an interview after release of a 140-page committee report which accused the construction industry of consistently misrepresenting to Congress "the exstence of wrongdoing" in the huge postwar rental housing program.

The report, issued last night, assailed "a few greedy and sometimes dishonest builders and incompetent, lax and sometimes dishonest FHA officials" as responsible for what it called multi million-dollar "windfall" profits "at the expense of the American people."

The committee report summed up an eight-month probe of Federal Housing Administration programs. It reported finding $76 million of such profits in 437 of the 543 projects it investigated.

Children's Home Gets Another Gift

Win Koch, superintendent of the home, said 30 volumes of the encyclopedia Britannica have been donated to the home by Ernie Hill of Williamsport. "It's a splendid gift for the children," Koch said, "and we certainly intend to make good use of it. It's another one of the many kind gestures made by district residents for the children placed in our care."

The oldest tennis court in England is that built for Henry VIII in 1530 at Hampton court palace.

The report said there was a close relationship between the foundation and the Herald Tribune. Mrs. Reid said on that point the report was "incorrect and scrambled."

"We can reach no other conclusion," Mrs. Reid said, "than that the attack on the foundation stems from the Herald Tribune's editorial criticism of the committee's biased and one-sided methods of investigation."

Philip L. Graham, president of the Washington Post Co., said the report contains "an untrue description of the Post Company's ownership." Solon Warns Against Bluff Of Red China

COLUMBUS (AP)—Rep. John M. Vorys (R-Ohio), a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, says he favors a blockade of the China mainland, where 11 American fliers are imprisoned, but only if the U. S. military power can back up a blockade.

Rep. Vorys told a radio-television audience here yesterday he favors the blockade if the Chinese Communists fail to release the imprisoned flyers. But he added:

"I'd want to consult with our military leaders more than I have before we impose a blockade. We must not run a bluff and have our bluff called."

He said he did not favor counter-invasion of the China mainland if Formosa were attacked. "We must so arrange our military affairs that we don't get our ground forces committed on the mainland of Asia," Vorys declared in answer to a question put to him on the Columbus Town Meeting program.

Vorys, who recently returned from a trip through Asia and the Middle East, was interviewed by two newsmen: Francis Carpenter, Associated Press U. N. correspondent, and William Theis, Washington correspondent for International News Service.

Elizah Scott McKinley, of Harrisburg, received back and left wrist injuries, a laceration of his left leg and a bump on his head. He told Deputy Sheriff Carl Radcliff that he had pulled off on the berm to avoid an approaching car when his auto went into a skid and struck the tree.

The accident occurred Sunday at 11:30 a. m. near Era, ¼ mile west of Route 3.

A-Electric Power Boom Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A consultant says atomic energy will provide 45 per cent of the nation's electric power by the year 2000.

H. Dewayne Kreager, executive officer of the Office of Defense Mobilization until mid-1953, surveyed the A-power possibilities.

He predicted that atomic-powered generators will become economically competitive with coal and oil-fueled plants by 1965, and that by 1975 they will be producing between 30 and 45 million kilowatts of the 300 million required.

From 1975 to 2000, he forecast, 80 per cent of the new generating capacity installed will be atomic.

Railway Reinstates Cincy Engineer

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Southern Railway System has reinstated an engineer whose discharge prompted a six-hour strike, a company spokesman announced last night.

Union leaders said the engineer, James Sullivan of Ludlow, Ky., had been discharged because he refused to follow company instructions to run his engine at greater speeds in the railroad yards than he deemed safe. The company said Sullivan, a railroader for 41 years, had been reinstated "under conditions satisfactory to both sides."

Hal Boyle Says:

Learn To Bite Your Wine

NEW YORK (AP)—If you plan to serve wine at your Christmas dinner, show your guests you're a real connoisseur.

"Bite wine?" you ask.

Certainly you have to bite wine to get its full flavor. Anyone who doesn't is almost as big an ignoramus as a guy who tries to drink a sirloin steak through a straw.

Truthfully, I'm not an old hand at wine biting myself. Never even heard of it until I ran into Baron Johannes Fredericus Leonardus Von Munchinger, a wine importer here who threw away his title to become Leo Van Munching, American citizen.

With the ex-baron wine isn't merely a drink. It's a lifelong courtship. He has sampled more than 1,000 brands.

But Van Munching is saddened by the fact that wine drinking in America often is associated by the public with an atmosphere of snobbery.

"Your real connoisseur is never a snob," he insisted. "Only the showoffs who pretend to be connoisseurs are snobs, those who pretend to know more about wine than they really do.

"But Americans learn easily, and there is no reason why they should not find it simple to acquire an adequate knowledge of wines. It merely takes a little practice and the learning of a few simple rules. One isn't born with a feel for wines. It is acquired."

To savor a wine properly you have to slurp it (quietly, of course, unless everybody at the table is an old buddy) as well as bite it.

Here's how, according to Van Munching:

"To start with, you pour out only half a glass. Then you roll it around and around, gently, sniffing the aroma."

OK, you are now nose-happy. On to the next step:

"Take a sip. Let it run through your teeth and around your tongue, so that it touches all your palate."

Now your palate is dazed with the wonder of it all. The lesson continues:

"Then you bite into it, and—" said Van Munching.

"You just bite once?" I broke in. "Don't you munch on it for a while?"

"Please, I am speaking of wine, not graham crackers," said Van Munching. "You bite the wine once, and let it roll down your throat slowly . . . very slowly."

Now you know the wine and the wine knows you, and you are entitled to pour a full glass and go on with the meal.

The beginner should first acquaint himself, Van Munching said, with the sight, smell and taste of the four basic fine wines—Burgundy, bordeaux, rhone and champagne. Then he is equipped, with pocketbook and palate ready, to go exploring on his own.

Van Munching himself is partial to champagne.

"It is a wonderful thing," he said. "It helps tone your system. You can return to it all day and never get high."

Rose champagne is popular with the international set because of its unusual color and sweet-dry taste. The beer set is still sticking to a foamy amber.

"What do you do with leftover wine at a dinner—that is a problem to many hostesses?" I asked. Van Munching looked as hurt as if I had stabbed him in the back with a corkscrew.

"The true connoisseur is he who drinks what's left over," he said sternly. "Only the imposter saves the remainder for next time."

Maybe he's right. But anybody who goes in for much wine biting soon learns one thing. Wine isn't altogether helpless. It can bite right back.

MINIMUM WAGE FIGHT

A FEDERAL MINIMUM wage law of 75 cents an hour now applies to 24 million workers in the United States. Labor Secretary Mitchell proposes to raise the minimum to 85 or 90 cents an hour. He would also extend the coverage to several million more workers by taking in service indusries like laundries and retail stores such as those dispensing groceries, dry goods and hardware.

This proposal, not yet approved by the President and his administration policy makers, will run into trouble from two sources. Business leaders claim it would increase costs, compel them to raise prices and thus would be inflationary. Conservatives in Congress will be quite a hurdle.

The conservative Republican bloc would probably be against it and Southerners, who will head most of the committees in the next Congress, will be hostile. The South is attracting northern industries and would oppose boat rocking by Congress. Even some Dixie members of Congress who pose as "liberals" would endanger their political lives by voting to disrupt the southern economy.

The proposal is certain to get into Congress and will become a major issue. If it divides the Northern and Southern Democrats, that party will be unable to continue citing the divided Republican party as the horrible example.

MAKING HEADWAY

UNCLE SAM'S larder of strategic metals required for the nation's stockpile of critical materials is more than half filled, reports the Office of Defense Mobilization. The agency has advised Congress that it has purchased and sored 61 per cent of the $7 billion worth of minerals allocated for the program, with nine per cent on order awaiting delivery.

But the ODM adds that there are 18 critical items on which purchases are 50 per cent or more behind the fixed minimum objectives.

It is not revealed in what items stockpiling is lagging, or what materials go into the stockpile. Classified, you know. Consensus of guesses appears to be that 35 to 40 minerals and metals are included in the list.

The long-term program has two objectives. One is to insure that the nation has a sufficient stock of materials that might not be available from abroad in event of war. The second is to bolster domestic production of ores and metals that would prove useful in wartime.

It is consoling to learn that the government is making good headway getting the stockpiles built up. It will be better news when the job is done. But the secrecy seems ludicrous. Is there anyone who want to bet the Russians do not know what is going into the stockpiles?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The issue of war or peace is always a dread and divisive one. It is rare, in modern times, that a statesman has willingly assumed the responsibility of starting a war; therefore all wars are called defensive and the people of each country involved in a war are led to believe that they have been attacked by a merciless enemy.

On the other hand, Hitler and Stalin both devised techniques of statecraft which made it possible for them to give the impression of desiring peace while conducting a war. The master of this paradox was Stalin who evolved the processes of penetration and infiltration as weapons of war in peace-time — weapons as effective as any constructed in an arms factory. American policy has often been confused by a failure to identify these techniques with the result that we have suffered some major defeats as in China, Korea and Indochina.

Be it noted that our principal defeats have been in Asia, not in Europe. That reason is that while our diplomacy has been concentrated on Europe, Soviet Russia's imperial efforts have been concentrated on Asia since 1945. Furthermore, while our statesmen are familiar with European affairs and characteristics, they are tragically ignorant of Asiatic affairs and characterisics and have been misled by a group of experts who have tended to support either Russia or Communism.

Having said this, we might make a comparison. Great Britain, for instance, is not in a geographic position to court war. It is now the most vulnerable area in Europe. It can be bombed out of existence. It can be destroyed by both the offensive and defensive forces. The British therefore must favor every effort toward peace, short of conquest by peaceful means, because war can only mean total destruction.

This has nothing to do with the character, the courage, the history or the quality of the British people. It is a matter of geography, of the concentration of population and industry.

Red China faces different problems: four million square miles in territory adjacent to Soviet Russia for about 4,000 miles, backed by a vast hinterland, capable of a low standard of living among a people accustomed to inadequate food supplies, without a notable concentration of industry anywhere in the country, and accessible to supplies from Soviet Russia without crossing an ocean.

Therefore while Great Britain cannot afford a war, Red China can risk greatly for the development and expansion of empire. Actually, Red China benefits by every move made against the "white" countries because all Asiatic nations, even the friendly ones, have a long hsitory of umbrage from and antagonism to those European countries that in the past regarded all pigmented peoples as inferiors. It is as much a case of getting even, as it is Marxism or imperialism.

Such situations in the past have made for war. Sooner or later, anger, fouled dignity, outraged national honor develop into war. It would appear that it is now the policy of Soviet China to twit the United States, to abuse this country, to create unnecessary sensations, all designed to establish the fact that we are afraid to fight. It may be small-boy tactics, but it is nonetheless outrageous and unbearable.

Consider Baby's Safety When Buying Him Toys

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WITH Christmas only a few days away, you'll probably want to buy some toys for that new baby.

Maybe he's your own, or maybe he belongs to a relative or a friend. But there's usually somebody's baby on every Christmas gift list.

Choosing Baby's Toys

Baby toys require some thought. While some are practical, and will be welcomed by the baby and his parents, others might prove injurious.

Of course, all babies like rattles, but the wrong kind of rattle can be extremely dangerous. Don't buy rattles filled with stone or shot. If the baby breaks or bites through it, he is liable to choke.

Some to Avoid

Toys with rough surfaces, sharp points or edges, tin toys or wooden toys that splinter easily should also be avoided. Marbles or small beads are not for babies, either.

Other toys on the "should not give" list are:

Loose-jointed toys with parts that might break off; toys made of lead or painted with ordinary paint containing lead; glass bottles of any kind; wooly, hairy toys which catch dirt and cannot be kept clean; toys that are so heavy the baby might injure himself playing with them.

No Trains, Pop!

And finally—and this probably will be a blow to Pop—no mechanical toys or trains which must be operated by a grownup. These may amuse the baby for a few seconds, but they'll soon bore him. Wait until he gets to be about four or five years old.

Toys a baby can enjoy without danger are safe plastic rattles filled with plastic materials, large rubber dolls, soft balls, unpainted blocks and even empty spools. As for colors, an infant prefers red, blue, green and yellow. He likes strong, clear colors better than pale shades.

These Are Good Choices

When a baby begins to walk, he'll especially enjoy some sort of toy he can pull behind him. A large rubber ball is an ideal gift for babies between one and two.

One more tip for parents. If your baby receives a lot of toys this Christmas, put some of them away immediately. You can give them to him when he tires of those you do let him play with.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

ANOTHER day of rain and Gary Norbeck found himself waiting for Enid to come. She had said she would.

He explained his eagerness in anticipating it by the fact that he had something to tell her. That Bressi was sending his canvas back to him and she could have it, if she still wanted it.

He was far from discouraged by its return. Bressi had written that it was not up to others of Gary's he had seen in the past.

Gary had read the letter a dozen times since he had got it, the day before. It lay open on his work table now and he reread some of it.

"I have often wondered what had become of you. I made a few inquiries but no one seemed to know. Then I came to the conclusion that you had abandoned your painting, which possibility, when I contemplated it, gave me deep regret for I felt you had more promise than most young artists and also the will to work hard, which, put together, should have taken you far. Where is Killbuck and why are you there? I am hoping that some day you will come to Boston and stop in to see me. I would like a good talk with you."

"The will to work . . ." That had been before he met Ursula.

Near noon, Enid appeared in the door, a gray figure in her hood and raincoat And Gary felt the impulse to kiss her as he had before. He checked it, said: "Come in. I was looking for you!"

She took off the coat, the hood, slipped out of her boots, came in, barefooted, carrying a box in her hand.

"You've had your long walk?"

"No, I've been cleaning the kitchen. And I made a pie—a lemon pie. It was quite exciting—I never made one before. Oh, back in school but with the domestic science teacher telling me every little thing to do. Silly to be proud of a pie, but I am! I gave half of it to Cindy and Aunt Jennie, but I brought the rest with me—if you'd dare eat it!"

She sat down on the stool.

"I am getting somewhere," she said. "By the process of eliminating what I can't do. I'm good with figures—my best grades in school were in math—I thought I might study to be an accountant."

Gary sprang to his feet in protest. "That's too dull!"

"Figures are not dull," she countered. "They are real—they never change and you know what they are—you don't have to guess! You put them together . . "

Gary said: "I want something different for you!" He stopped abruptly. What did he want for her?

Enid said: "But I think I'd like it—and isn't it best for one to do what one can do and likes to do? You do your paintings . . ."

"Here — read this letter." He gave her the letter.

She read it, then a second time as if she were learning something from it. Then she looked up at him. "You will send him more? I mean—like the ones you painted before — the good ones? You'll really work?"

"Yes, I'll work! If it's in me to do it!" Then a smile broke the soberness of his face. "Do you know, girl, that you'd be good for me? A slave driver—that is what I need!"

She glanced over the room. "Maybe you should go away from here—maybe you're too shut in with yourself here to get ideas of what you want to paint."

"That's something to think about," he answered. Then: "What say we eat?"

As they ate, Gary told her more about Bressi. "He's one of the best critics in the country—has a gallery in Boston. If you have anything you've done hung in one of his exhibits you're getting places!" He told of Bressi's kindness to him, when he was beginning to paint, Bressi's encouragement. "Everyone else thought I was a fool to chuck college so as to give all my time to painting, but Bressi didn't."

She asked, "You have a family?"

"I did then. Not much of a one —a grandfather and a brother. I've only the brother now and he despises me, so I don't count it a relationship."

Enid said: "I'm awfully confused about relationships. I do think everyone has a right to be free! I've talked about it—yes, I told you I had to feel free of my mother. And now, lately, I'm worried about her—she isn't herself at all. Maybe you can't get wholly free of others. There are strings . . ."

"Strings," Gary repeated. "And maybe we wouldn't like it, without them."

Enid cut the pie, and as they started to eat it Enid gave a cry of disappointment.

"It's awful! I must have forgotten something — put something wrong in it! And I was so proud of it!"

Then with tears in her eyes she began to laugh, and Gary laughed with her. "Oh, not too bad! Let's finish it!"

"No, no! And what'll Cindy and Aunt Jennie think of me? That I am useless . . ."

"What — you a future accountant? Bet neither of them can add up a column of figures!"

They washed the dishes. They disposed of the pie. "I'm going to make a good one," Enid declared. "I found an ancient cookbook on a kitchen shelf—but next time I'll ask Cindy."

"Strings?" said Gary, smiling.

"Yes, strings."

Then she put on her boots, her raincoat, her hood.

"Next rainy day?"

"Yes."

A letter came the next week to Hester from Anne Babbit. It read:

"Darling:

"I was in too horrible a rush to write you before I left Buffalo and you will observe that I left before the pageant. I simply was not going to stay and see Lydia Holzworth featured in a big way when it should have been you! I'm here in Salem with my cousin Janet Price for two weeks, then going to Bar Harbor. Any chance of your joining me there?

"This Gary Norbeck you wrote to me about—the name of Norbeck was familiar to me because of the Norbeck Mills. But I never knew any of the family. I figured this man who you said had been a man-of-all-work for your uncle might be some distant, poor relation. But, NO.

"The second day I was here, Janet took me to a bride luncheon —12 women. And straight off I was introduced to a Mrs. Alec Norbeck. Incidentally, she is the most stunning gal I've ever seen! She sat across from me at the table and I asked her: 'Is your husband any relation of Gary Norbeck's?' She laughed and said: "Very much of one — they're brothers.' But when I asked her there was the queerest hush as if each one at the table held their breath. Then, quick, one of them started talking madly about something else. I still wasn't certain this brother and your man were the same, but before we sat down to play she came up to me and asked if were a friend of Gary's. I said he was a friend of a friend of mine who was spending the summer in Killbuck where he lives. And she said: 'Oh, yes, Killbuck. Gary's ridiculous, living in a place with such a name.' So then I knew they were the same. But, Hester, I wish you could have seen her face when she said it—well, probably you've seen a cat's face when it sights its prey and she looked just that way.

"The moment we got home I asked Janet to give me the lowdown about it. And she had it—she's older than Mrs. Alec's set but she gets in with them quite a bit. Seems this Gary Norbeck is the black sheep of the family. Simply no good, Janet has heard some say. He wouldn't finish college, wouldn't go into the Mills, just hung around night clubs and cocktail lounges. Pretended to be an artist, but Janet said no one ever saw anything he had painted. He was in the Navy for a part of the war and while he was away Alec married his girl. When Gary came back he went on seeing her. It was the big scandal at the time. That was when mother was living in Florida and I wasn't coming back to Salem so I missed it all.

"But there was more, Janet said. His grandfather died very suddenly and after the funeral Gary Norbeck simply disappeared. He had to disappear or else be charged with the murder of his grandfather for he had knocked the old man down!

"That's your man, darling. I hope this dope is what you want. It's fantastic to think of a brother-in-law of Mrs. Alec as a farmhand but funny things do happen. If you are having the fellow do any work for you, I'd discharge him.

"I ran into Hubert on the street downtown a day or so before I left Buffalo. You don't have to worry about him—he looked very well.

"'By now. This is a long letter for me. I'm exhausted.

"Love, Anne."

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

news behind the news

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles are slowly reversing and repudiating the historic policy of self-determination of small peoples pioneered by Woodrow Wilson at the Versailles Peace Conference and reiterated by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Atlantic Charter. But neither statesman is especially happy over the necessity for the shift.

In supporting such colonial powers as Britain, France and the Netherlands against the demands of certain overseas elements for full freedom, the White House concedes that it has taken this step only in the interest of Allied unity in the face of the Russian menace. Both Eisenhower and Dulles, almost apologetically, explain their action on the basis of international expediency.

IDEALISM—I retrospect, and despite the idealism which motivated their self - determination program, the Wilson-Roosevelt slogans have weakened the Western World's resistance to dictators of the Fascist or Communist ariety.

Breaking Europe into small and helpless pieces at Versailles made it much easier for Hitler to swallow them one by one, and eventually bring on World War II. Similarly, Moscow was able to absorb the Baltic, Central European and Balkan States after World War II because of the divisions that had been created on the circumference of Russia.

Still under the spell of international idealism, Roosevelt and former President Truman contributed to this debilitating movement. F.D.R. helped to win independence for India and Indonesia by exerting pressure on London and the Hague. Truman helped to create the new state of Israel, antagonizing the Arabs. He also intervened to persuade the British to withdraw from Egypt, although actual abandonment was negotiated only last July.

Thus, Washington forced Winston Churchill to swallow his statement that "I did not become the King's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire!"

ISSUES—The worldwide wave of nationalism thus inspired has not yet spent itself, the most controversial issues before the General Assembly of the United Nations involve the demands of nationalities for the right to decide their own destinies.

The Greeks on the key sland of Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean insist upon separation from Britain and union (enosis) with Athens, The French protectorates of Tunisia and Morocco in North Africa want self-government. Primitive peoples on the island of Netherlands New Guinea seek to become members of the Indonesian Republic.

The European powers maintain that these are internal questions not susceptible to United Nations action. At first, the United States tried to take a hands-off attitude in these controversies, fearing support of London, Paris and the Hague would enable the Communists to assail us as "colonialists" and "imperialists."

OUTPOST —But considerations of world defense against the Russian threat now incline us to oppose these demands for independence or a shift of allegiances. All the territory in dispute represents strategic outposts in the cold or possibly hot war.

Now that Britain has pulled out of Egypt, Cyprus provides the only strong Allied base for planes, submarines and supplies in the Eastern Mediterranean. We have studded North Africa with airfields that might be jeopardized, if rule were turned over to the natives. Abandonment of New Guinea would open the vast South Pacific, including Australia and New Zealand, to a Russian advance by sea and air.

Thus, and ironically, if freedom is denied to these people, they can blame it on the proletarian politicians in the Kremlin, but they will probably hold the United States largely responsible for the defeat or deferment of their nationalistic ambitions.

One hapless student gazed helplessly at the questions, then wrote: "God knows the answers, Dr. Phelps. All I can say to you is Merry Christmas." He got his paper back with this note scrawled across the top by Billy Phelps: "God gets an A. You get an F. Happy New Year!"

Sausage and fried apples taste wonderful for Sunday breakfast. For an extra-pretty platter, nestle a few sprigs of parsley around the sausage and fill the center of the apple rings with a little whole cranberry sauce or a tiny round of jellied cranberry sauce.

Make sure you remove all spots and stains from clothing before putting into hot water, or before ironing, because the heat of the water or the iron will tend to set them.

Is your family tired of the same old French toast? Try substituting pineapple or orange juice for the milk in your usual recipe, and dust with cinnamon-sugar before serving.

Spices Date Back To Early Biblical Tales

With Christmas almost here, thoughts turn back to Bible times, when spices were precious and often had a religious significance.

The first mention of spices in the Bible is in the Book of Genesis, Chapter 37, in connection with the story of Joseph:

"And they lifted up their eyes and looked, and behold, a company of Ishmaelites came from Gilead with their camels bearing spicery and balm and myrrh, going into Egypt."

Later, after Joseph had been sold into Egypt, and had become a power there, Jacob sent his sons to Egypt for corn to keep his people from starving. And Jacob said to his sons: "Carry down the man a present, a little balm, a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts and almonds."

In the book of Exodus, spices are mentioned in the story of the wanderings of the children of Israel.

Spices are not mentioned as frequently in the New Testament. When Jesus was speaking to the Scribes and Pharisees, he said, according to Matthew 23:23: "Ye pay tythe of mint and anise and cumin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgement, mercy and faith."

Again, in Matthew, Jesus also speaks of the power of faith "even if it be no greater than as a grain of mustard seed."

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many an old man, tossed out on the street because he couldn't pay his rent, has spent the rest of his days reflecting mournfully on his folly with money in his early years.

Looking for dividends to keep him in his old age, he had invested his money long ago. Wisely, he thought. He learned too late his judgment was bad. He had put too much into one stock, not enough in another.

This country is still young, as nations go, with a lot of money. The Eisenhower administration, present custodian of it, is trying to avoid for the American future the fate which overtook the old man.

It is trying to economize to save money and at the same invest where it thinks there will be dividends in the long run. Both the saving and the investment are a guess and a risk.

In the 1952 presidential campaign the Republicans talked of balanacing the budget. They promised economy and they've practiced it in many areas. But they still haven't been able to hit a balance

The country is 278 billion dollars in debt now, most of it money borrowed to fight World War II and communism afterwards. Balancing the budget would not wipe out the debt. It would only mean the administration had found a way to keep the debt from getting bigger.

Some presidential advisers — particularly Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Joseph M. Dodge, former budget director —are pictured as stern partisans for more economy and a balanced budget, and for this reason:

That if the United States is to retain its power in the long fight against communism it must be economically sound by living within its means and meeting its responsibilities within a balanced budget.

But there is another side to this tortured problem for the Eisenhower administration:

What does it profit to balance the budget if, in the end, the Communists win because this country, in its desire for economy, doesn't spend enough money in the right places, in the right ways, and at the right times?

This dilemma is illustrated in the decisions the administration is trying to make on military manpower and foreign aid, particularly aid for Asia.

The administration apparently doesn't think war likely, at least soon. President Eisenhower himself talks of the cold war lasting 50 years. Throughout that time the United States must be strong enough to deter aggression.

How can it be done? The government could try to maintain a huge military force, but the budget couldn't be balanced, and if no war came the money spent would be, perhaps, money wasted.

The government could economize by putting more reliance on strategic bombers which can carry atomic weapons and reducing the size of the land forces while building up the reserves in case of emergency.

That involves a risk since in an emergency this country might not be able to mobilize fast enough. It's a risk the administration seems willing to take for the sake of economy over the long pull.

In Asia the Communists have had major success. They may try further military force or internal subversion.

Meanwhile, they are using the other means at hand: propaganda, political maneuvering, infiltration, and, where they think it worthwhile, economic aid.

If the United States refuses to give economic help to Asia, that would leave the field to the Communists. The administration, again for the sake of economy, is trying to decide how little aid it can get by with successfully.

The Communists may take over Asia anyway, no matter how much help this country provides. But if this country gives too little aid, it may be just as ineffective as no aid at all.

Wolves In Texas Outsmart Hunters Armed With Bows

Timber wolves have been preying on sheep around here. A week ago yesterday 275 hunters with guns staged a mass hunt and nary a wolf.

This past weekend six members of the Dallas Field and Archers Assn. tried it. They used a "hurt rabbit" call that goes "wayeh, whayeh" to lure the prey but returned yesterday empty-handed.

Said I. L. Abernathy? "The high wind was probably the reason. You have to blow the call downwind, but in a high wind like last night the wolves picked up our scent. We saw a lot of eyes, but they never got close enough for us to bother shooting."

Bikini Suits Banned On Town Streets

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP)—Selectmen say they don't like the idea of Bikini bathing suits on Nantucket streets—in the summer.

Even as the blustery winter winds blew, the selectmen yesterday approved a proposed town bylaw which says everyone over 12 must be covered "to a point midway the hip and knees" if they wander from the beaches.

Selectmen said they approved the proposal at this time of the year since it must be acted on at the Feb. 15 town meeting.

Driver Demerit Bill Readied

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Rep. Samuel L. Devine (R-Franklin) says the Legislature convening next Jan. 3 will get another proposal for a driver demerit system.

Devine is drafting a proposed safety program bill to include annual auto inspection and adult driver education requirements. A measure including provisions for inspection and a demerit system died in committee in 1953.

Flimsy Clothing Top Fire Peril For Children

If you have any children in the "let's pretend" ages, part of your Christmas shopping will be easy.

The choice of gifts will probably be made for you, in the form of demands for the latest in space suits, cowboy outfits or whatever other costumes their current make-believe lives call far. And you had better follow instructions to the letter, because even a misplaced stud on a holster will be spotted!

But the most important detail, the National Board of Fire Underwriters emphasizes, is something the youngsters do not even notice. It is this: make sure those costumes are flame resistant!

Last June, a partial victory in the fight against the sale of flammable garments was achieved with the passage by Congress of Public Law 88, known as the "Flammable Fabrics Act." Nevertheless, this is a minimum law, and does not fully protect the consumer.

As Edward F. Howrey, chairman of the Federation Trade Commission (policing agency for the law) warns, "The act merely forbids the sale of those fabrics which are especially hazardous. Fabrics of normal flammability can still result in casualties if the wearer is careless with fire or sparks."

What can you do to protect your children?

First, when buying a costume of flimsy material, see if it is labelled as being flame-resistant. Occasionally you can find one that is. But even if you do, make sure washing or dry-cleaning do not lessen or destroy the flame-resistance

In the case of untreated costumes, you can easily do the job yourself. Just dip the cloth (assuming it is washable) in a solution of 9 ounces of borax and 4 ounces of boric acid to a gallon of water. Wring by hand and hang to dry. The flame resistance is not affected by ironing, but the treatment must be repeated after every laundering.

Use this treatment on filmy party dresses and doll clothes, too—and it's equally good for grown-ups' clothing and for washable draperies and other household furnishings.

A word of caution. Do not expect too much of the term, "flame-resistant." If you hold a match to a flame-resistant fabric, it will burn.

But it will not continue to burn when you take the match away. Your children will be safe from a deadly or disfiguring "flash fire"!

A special Christmas service will be held by the South Bloomfield Methodist charge next Thursday from 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The Rev. Paul E. Lindsey, pastor, announced the arrangements for churches in the charge. The Rev. Abts will be the main speaker.

Crime Rate Up

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden's crime rate is mounting. The Central Bureau of Statistics reports crimes of all types totaled 55,196 in the third quarter this year, more than 3,000 above the corresponding period of 1953.

Christmas Memories

A Scrapbook Compiled by Clark Kinnaird

WHO first coupled "merry" with "Christmas" in the coinage of the most familiar seasonal greeting? Perhaps George Wither, 16th century English poet who wrote:

"For Christmas comes but once a year,
And then they shall be merry.
Hang Sorrow, care will kill a cat,
And therefore let's be merry."

An Irish poet was moved to comment:

"For Christmas comes but wanst a year,
And when it comes it brings good cheer,
And when it goes it laves us here,
And what'll we do for the rest o' the year?"

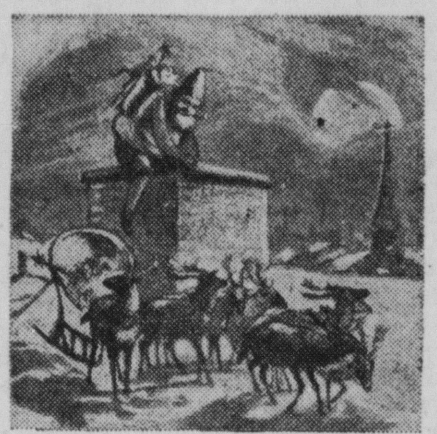
The extent to which the present national character of Christmas observance is of recent origin is indicated by turning back to a popular encyclopedia of a century ago. The following is the complete entry on Christmas in The New American Cyclopedia, 16 vols., 1859 edition:

"In the United States, since the Puritans were at first stern opponents of Christmas pastimes, the day has been less generally celebrated in New England than in the middle and southern states. It has been made a legal holiday in some of the states, and is usually observed by a religious service and by making presents, and not infrequently by trimming houses and churches with evergreens, and by imitating the German custom of Christmas trees."

This Cyclopedia has no reference to St. Nicholas or Santa Claus.



This [→] was the popular concept of Santa Claus in those days. It is the illustration used by Harper's Magazine with its publication of C. C. Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas" in the Christmas issue, 1857.

Sokolsky's

It will not be solved by scattering billions of dollars like rain over the paddy fields of Southeastern Asia. It will not be solved by peaceful proclamations which can only encourage Mao ze-tung and Chou En-lai to do more of the same. It can only be handled by some show of force because the Chinese have never, in their long history, responded to anything but force.

China has always been involved in wars, internal and external. Its reputation for peace comes from the writings of its philosophers rather than the records of its history. But how does one employ force without risking a universal war? And is force to be used today or five years later?

These are questions of national policy upon which the future of our country depends, and they can only be answered by the President of the United States, whoever he may be, because upon him alone falls this heavy responsibility. If he makes too many mistakes in judgement, it will be very unfortunate because no historic mistake, of international magnitude, can be corrected except by war or revolution. If he is wise, our strength will save us.

Dogs In Florida Near Paradise

Three women are out rounding up all the stray dogs in this community, collecting dog good for Christmas Week feasts and for the weeks to come.

Peggy Davis, policewoman here, and Mrs. George England and Mrs. Joe Borders even plan a Christmas tree for homeless pups and if they are real good, like youngsters should be at this time of the year, the dogs will be put up for adoption.

tate Rules For Tax Valuation over Property Wear-And-Tear

A set of new rules recently opted by the State Board of Tax peals for the valuation of real operty for taxation purposes has ven Pickaway County residents a r idea what a county-wide reapaisal due next year will mean to e average home-owner.

In setting forth the new set of gulations, the state board emasized that the auditor in each f Ohio's 88 counties must "abide y, follow and comply with" all f them. A copy of the state's ompulsory "yardstick' was orered sent to each county audor, county prosecutor, county reasurer, and each member of he board of county commissionrs.

Recognizing the importance of new rules for district taxpays, The Herald in two previous arles has listed some of the more portant regulations. Today's arle concludes this series, resumg the list of rules at that point here it was ended in The Herald sue of last Friday.

Included in the final installment day is the important section on preciation and obsolescence of perty.

(C) COMMERCIAL AND INDUSRIAL—Each building should be easured to determine the number square feet or cubic feet it conins, and a sketch drawn on the operty record card.

The exterior and interior of each ilding should be inspected and raded according to quality of conruction.

Replacement cost schedules uld be based on the prices of bor, materials, architect's or eneer's fees, plus contractor overead and profit, and other charges, evailing in the area to be appraisd in January 1950.

(D) FARM—Each building should measured to determine the umber of square feet or cubic feet contains, and a sketch of the welling or dwellings drawn on the operty record card. If the barn is egular in shape, it should be etched on the property record rd. All other buildings should be umbered, the number inclosed in rcle to appear in the space for etch of buildings, in its proper cation to the house and barn.

The exterior and interior of each ilding should be inspected and raded according to quality of conruction.

Replacement cost schedules uld be priced according to the bor and materials prevailing in e area to be appraised during anuary 1950

Replacement cost schedules hall include all farm buildings (exluding the farn dwelling which hould be priced according t othe esidential schedule, less depreciaon and obsolescence, particularly nctional obsolescence due to loation), including general and spel type barns, milk houses, mahinery sheds, granaries, corn ribs, silos, hog houses, poultry ouses, and other miscellaneous rm buildings.

One set of all building schedules f every class, type and grade hould be on file in the county audor's office and open for public inpection during regular office ours. A duplicate of all schedules hould be filed with the Division of unty Affairs of the Board of Tax peals.

RULE 109

DEPRECIATION AND OBSOESCENCE — Actually, depreciaon is the loss in value from any ause. In appraisal practice, the ords depreciation and obsolescenc ave different meanings.

1. Depreciation in general terms relates to physical deterioration: loss due to wear and tear, disintegration, and the action of the elements.
2. Functional obsolescence is loss due to overcapacity, undercapacity, inadequacy, changes of process, location, etc.
3. Economic obsolescence is loss due to external economic forces, such as changes in the use of land, loation, zoning or other legislative enactments that might restrict or change property rights and values and other similar factors.

In appraising buildings for taxation purposes, the assessor should strive to arrive at the economic value of the improvement to the land. Actual depreciation depends upon three conditions: One, the type or kind of construction; two, the type of maintenance and repairs; three, replacements, restorations, or modernizations.

There are many methods used in arriving at the degree or the percent of the loss in value of buildings due to wear and tear and other causes. There are three common and prevailing methods in general use: One, the straight line method based on the premise that the loss in value occurs in equal annual amounts.

If the estimated useful life of a building is 50 years, then multiplying the age of the building by 2 for each year would result in the percentage of depreciation.

Another approach, the observed condition method, is based upon inspection of the building for the purpose of determining the degree of depreciation or the remaining useful life. Obviously the accuracy of this method depends entirely upon the training, experience and judgment of the valuator.

Generlaly a combination of the two methods is the more reliable.

The straight line method should be used only as a guide by the assessor to enable him to determine if maintenance, repairs, restorations and modernization has increased the value and life beyond the average expectancy, or if excessive wear and tear or neglect has lessened the value and life expectancy.

Each county auditor is required to decide the proper method to be used in his county and submit his method to the Board of Tax Appeal for its approval or disapproval.

RULE 111

TAX MAPS—All tax maps of the county shall be corrected and kept up-to-date. Tax maps should accurately indicate the area, acreage or dimensions of each lot, tract or parcel of land in the county, together with the name of the owner, and lot number. Municipal tax maps shall show the unit foot price on each street.

RULE 112 ..C

OLECT DATA RELATING TO VALUATION—Each auditor or a deputy should collect and analyze all information relating to the value of real property in his county, including accurate and reliable sales data, bids, asking prices, mortgages, rents, etc.

Sailor Injured While Near Home

BOSTON (AP)—James Cahill, 24, a sailor from Winthrop, came all the way from the West Coast to spend Christmas at home for the first time in four years.

As he headed for a subway station for the last four miles to his home, he was struck by a motorist, who failed to stop after the accident.

Later, he was transferred to the naval hospital in Chelsea, where doctors said they didn't think he could be released to be home for Christmas.

Buck Gridders Down To Business

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After weekend sight-seeing, Ohio State's Buckeyes were set to start the business of intensive Rose Bowl drills today.

They posed for pictures and made a bus tour around the city yesterday, sandwiched in two hours of light contact work on East Los Angeles Junior College field and, later, took in a TV show.

Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes said the team will run through double practice sessions at the field today and tomorrow.

Steve Nagy Wins Ohio Bowling Title

BUCYRUS (AP) — Steve Nagy of Cleveland took the first annual Ohio State singles match game bowling championship last night, as he beat out fellow Clevelander, Al Novak, 4873-4860.

The championship was decided in the final frame of the 24th and final game when Nagy, needing 8 pins, spilled 9 and then spared to make his 13-pin victory lead.

Yuletide Lull Hits Program Among Boxers

NEW YORK (AP)—The Christmas week lull hits the boxing business this week with only a few promoters who have television contracts opening their doors.

Those two hardy Monday night rivals, Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway and New York's St. Nicholas Arena, continue on a normal basis but most of the others are closing up for the holidays.

Even Madison Square Garden will pass up the Friday shows both this week and next on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. The Saturday night fights are featuring amateurs.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner had to look around for a sub at Eastern Parkway tonight when Walter Cartier came down with a virus infection. He finally settled on Paul Pender, the ex - Marine from Boston, as an opponent for Ted Olla of Milwaukee in a 10-round middleweight match (ABC-TV).

St. Nicholas arena also has a sub in the main event in Pete Adams of Newark, N. J. against Jimmy Martinez of Phoenix, Ariz., in a 10-round welter match.

Adams, whose fingers were mashed so severely in an industrial accident that four had to be amputated, subs for Gerry Dreyer who was injured in training.

The 23-year-old Adams is one of a family of 21 children. He has a career record of 12-4-2 as compared to Martinez' 54-11-4.

The bout will be carried on network TV (Dumont).

Terrible Ted Lauded For '54 Comeback

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Williams, who may not come back to baseball any more, was voted today as having made the greatest comeback of the 1954 season.

The mighty slugger of the Boston Red Sox, generally recognized as one of the greatest of all hitters, gained the nod over another of the all-time greats, Bobby Feller, veteran right-handed pitcher of the Cleveland Indians.

The 422 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the annual Associated Press poll spread their votes over 43 players.

Williams received 84 votes to Feller's 70. Vic Wertz, who did so well for Cleveland after the Indians had acquired him from Baltimore last June, was third with 52 votes. Joe Coleman, veteran Baltimore right-hander, was fourth with 39, and Sal Maglie, clutch right-hander of the New York Giants, was fifth with 29. Maglie led all National Leaguers on the comeback path.

The rest of the top 10 included Johnny Antonelli, Giants, 22; Larry Doby, Indians, 15; Marv Grissom, Giants, 13; Steve Gromek, Detroit Tigers, 11; and Jim Wilson, Milwaukee Braves, 8.

Those who voted for Williams obviously regarded the 36-year-old outfielder as still on the comeback trail although he returned from his second hitch with the Marines in August 1953. He went on a batting rampage in the closing months of the '53 season, hitting a blistering .407 in 37 games followed that up with a spectacular .345 campaign in '54.

Illini, Bucks, Purdue Pace Big Ten Race

CHICAGO (AP)—With the opening of the Big Ten title chase but a couple of holidays away, Illinois, Ohio State and Purdue have stamped themselves as title contenders.

Illinois, rated No. 3 in the Associated Press poll last week, and Ohio State are the only undefeated teams in the conference while Purdue has but one loss in six games.

The Boilermakers lost 69-68 to Penn, a team which has since bowled over Iowa and Michigan State.

The high - ranked, pre-season contenders, Iowa and Indiana, have been disappointing to say the least. Indiana, the defending champion, has been beaten three times, the final being a 97-65 humiliation at the hands of Cincinnati.

Iowa, meanwhile, has been beaten by Missouri in addition to Penn.

While the Hawkeyes could be experimenting to find a perfect combination for the conference race, the Hoosiers seem unable to make up the loss of three key players—Bob Leonard, Dick Farley and Chuck Kraak.

At present, Illinois seems to warrant top billing, despite Ohio State's high-scoring machine.

The Illini have won five straight. Among their opponents were Missouri, 77-49, Oklahoma AM, 59-53; and Notre Dame, 66-57.

While the Buckeyes have yet to score less than 90 points in four victories, they also have yet to limit the opposition to less than 80.

Mighty Utah Appears Tops Among College

No. 1 LaSalle Beate By Utes As Westerne Team Works Smooth

The Associated Press

If there are any better out than Utah in the college ba ball ranks at present, they be stand up and be counted.

The Utes brought a so-so mark into Madison Square Gar Saturday night and to everyo surprise proceeded to score a 7 victory over LaSalle, erstw NCAA champion and the natic No. 1 team in last week's As ciated Press poll.

Utah showed a relaxed, confid team, well coached and unawe the Explorers. They were in c mand for the greater share of final half after trailing 41-38 at intermission.

The Utes, though expert coached by Jack Gardner, the f mer Kansas State mentor, w by no means a great team agai LaSalle. But they'll do until a b ter one comes along.

Admittedly, LaSalle, with standout Tom Gola netting on points, might have experienced off night. But it's doubtful t even a tip-top LaSalle club co have restrained the Utes. The U were so superior the result ca even be termed an upset, exc by way of excuse among the perts who delegated Utah to better than the No. 15 spot in rankings.

Whether Utah is actually as g as it looked should show up morrow night at Lexington, K when Utah runs up against K tucky, No. 2 in the nation, in first round of the Kentucky Invi tional Tournament.

By coincidence, LaSalle is in same get-together, opposing Sou ern California in the first round

Kentucky stayed among the beaten last week with a 79-61 l ing of Temple, the club that ended St. John's of Brooklyn week. It was the Wildcats' 2 consecutive victory.

Southern Cal won its fifth de sion in six over the weekend, ma ing New Mexico 103-39.

Another of the holiday tour ments gets under way today Oklahoma City with Oklaho ming, Houston, Tulsa, San Fr cisco, Wichita and host Oklaho City competing in the All-Colle shindig.

George Washington, unbea conqueror of highly rated D quesne for the Steel Bowl tit Wichita, among the Missouri V ley Conference favorites; S Francisco, a 56-44 winner ov previously unbeaten and eigh ranked UCLA Saturday; and Wy ming a possible sleeper that d feated St. Louis 74-68 over t weekend are the teams to wate

One other top-ranked team lowed the pattern of LaSalle a UCLA over the weekend as In ana (No. 7) looked anything but repeater in the Big Ten in a 97- loss to Cincinnati. It was t Hoosiers' third setback.

With only sixth-ranked Missou idle, the rest of the top 10 su vived the weekend. Illinois (No. added further proof that this is Notre Dame's year with its four straight victory, 66-57; North C lina State (No. 4) made it 8-0 w an 85-74 whipping of Texas Tec Dayton (No. 5) handed College Pacific its third defeat on an Eas ern tour, 73-66; and Niagara (N 10) bopped Toledo 80-61.

Monroe Squad Starting Lineup Has 5 Juniors

Monroe's Indians with an all juniors on the varsity scalped Saltcreek last Friday night for their first Pickaway County League win.

Coach Bill Wolfe's lads from up Five Points way may prove to be the 'spoilers" of the league. Not long ago they gave front running Williamsport quite a battle before running out of gas.

Stan Jones, 5' 11', is a high scoring forward. He has dumped 66 points through the hoops in four league contests, 11th highest in the county. He is a three-year varsity player and co-captain of the team.

Bill Cupp, the Indians' 6' center, is in his second season of varsity play. He is a good jump shot artist.

ANOTHER SECOND YEAR player is guard Dale Mowery Only 5' 8", is quite a ball hawk and very fast.

The other co-captain of the quintet is Dwight Miller. This 6' forward is a good rebound man and also in his second year of play.

Lions Edge Browns 14-10 In 'Meaningless' Battle

CLEVELAND (AP)—Buddy Parker's Detroit Lions defeated the Cleveland Browns for the seventh time in eight tries yesterday, and after the blizzard-swept game the rival coaches said:

Paul E. Brown — "We'd have liked a victory in that one, but we didn't get it."

Parker — "I wish that were the score of next Sunday's game."

The score was 14-10, and the Lions hit the airways for the come-from-behind touchdown in the last 50 seconds after it appeared the Browns had it wrapped up.

The game, except for the prestige involved, meant nothing, since each team had already clinched its division championship. It was a makeup tilt, postponed from Oct. 3, and served as a practice swing for next Sunday's clash between the same clubs for the world championship.

Most astounding thing about the game, played in deep snow which fell for hours before and during the game, was that Cleveland's vaunted passing attack, its most dangerous weapon, gained only four yards. Otto Graham completed only one of six tries.

But Detroit's Bobby Layne connected on 18 of 37 for 183 yards and both touchdowns. The first came on a 26-yarder to end Dorne Dibble to deadlock the game at 7-7 in the third quarter. Then Layne completed six of seven tries—four to Jug Girard for 56 yards—in the eight-play, 74-yard drive which won in the final minute. The payoff was an 11-yarder to Girard.

The Browns had the ball in Lion territory only twice, and they scored both times. The first time came in the opening minutes when fullback Bill Boman fumbled later Graham sneaked for the counter.

In the third period, after Detroit had tied it, Cleveland moved from the 20 to Detroit's 37. As the drive stalled, golden-toed Lou Groza backed up to the 43 and kicked his 16th field goal in 24 tries to put the Browns ahead 10-7.

Ohio Collegiate Cagers In Lull

COLUMBUS (AP)—This is the week of the "big lull" in Ohio's college basketball circles. Only seven games are on tap this week.

But the lull will be short as the collegiate tossers scatter in all directions for holiday tournaments during the Christmas - New Year's week. Heavy firing at home won't resume until Jan. 3.

Remaining unbeaten are Akron and Dayton tied with six in a row, Ohio State, Ohio Northern and Wooster with four straight, and Capital with three.

Furgol Collects Havana Torphy

HAVANA (AP) — Ed Furgol was off for a Florida rest cure for his ailing right arm today, packing along a $2,000 first prize check from the Havana Invitation Golf Tournament and his first victory since he won the National Open last June.

The Clayton, Mo., splinter, who has carried a withered left arm since a childhood accident, didn't seem to notice the injured right arm in the tourney windup yesterday. He shot a 67 over the par-72 Havana Country Club course, a 6,377-yard layout, for a 72-hole total of 273—15 strokes under par.

5 Persons Claim Captured Falcon

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Police captured a red-tailed falcon which had somehow flown into the psychiatry ward of the Salt Lake General Hospital. It was placed in the local zoo for safekeeping.

Yesterday, Zoo Director Robert H. Mattlin said a local newspaper story on the falcon had turned up five men who claimed to be its owners. He said he planned a "showup" today.

Columbus UAW OKs NAA Contract

COLUMBUS (AP)—Members of the CIO-United Auto Workers Union voted yesterday to accept a new contract covering some 16,000 workers at Columbus' North American Aviation, Inc., plant.

The new pact includes a 2 cent hourly wage boost which, added to a 3-cent cost-of-living allowance, gives North American workers wages ranging from $1.54 to $2.53 hourly.

40 Shrapnel Wounds Suffered By Boyer; Had 21 Transfusions

'A "living" example of the accomplishments of what your blood donations can do is Clarence Boyer, of Circleville.

Boyer was wounded in Korea in 1952 and since has had 21 blood transfusions—a pint each time. A complete change of a human being's entire blood system requires 16 pints.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Circleville Thursday. Boyer said that it should be everyone's duty to donate so that others might be alive to see another day, such as he was able to do.

The Bloodmobile will be located in front of the Methodist Church, Pickaway and Main Streets. It will be open from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

THE WOUNDED ex-master sergeant of the famed Second Infantry Division made it clear that he is very grateful for the anonymous donors who made it possible for him to tell the story. He added, however, that the blood is used for many non-war patients as well.

Boyer said that perhaps his story will help increase the number of blood donors in Pickaway County—a number which has dwendled dangerously low on a number of occasions.

Although Boyer was born and raised in Ross County, he has worked and lived in and around Pickaway County. The 27-year old decorated vet of World War II and the Korean mess is married and lives at 650 E. Ohio St.

He spent four years in the Army from 1942 to 1946, with duty in the Far East. Upon discharge, Boyer went back to his native love of farming.

On May 28, 1948 he re-enlisted back into the Army. Because of his previous experience, he soon rose to the rank of a six striper and was sent over to Korea.

FOUR MONTHS after he arrived in the battle zone he was wounded. He and six others went out to "secure" a valley near Pin Point Ridge, in north Korea.

But the enemy apparently had the valley "zeroed in'. Suddenly, mortar shells began to lob in and the seven me began to dig in and return the fire.

One mortar shell found its mark on Boyer. He received 40 pieces of shrapnel in both legs, his back and neck. Although he was wounded on Oct. 16, he did not ragain consciousness for a week.

WHEN BOYER finally woke up, he was in Camp Drew Hospital near Tokyo. He went through five operations on his right leg alone.

Boyer found out that the all-day shelling took a heavy toll. Of the seven men who went out only one was not hurt. The remaining five, including Boyer, were either wounded or killed.

Approximately 60 rounds of mortar shells were fired at the Americans. Boyer was in a fox hole when he was hit.

The entire knee joint of his right leg has been completely removed. Bones in that leg have been replaced with steel plates, tubes and eight stainless steel screws.

BOYER MUST WEAR a brace on his right leg for the rest of his life. He has to rely on a cane many times. But he wants no sympathy—in reality, he deserves admiration.

"If not for the 21 pints of blood I received,' he declared, "I would not be here today. I believe everyone should not hesitate to donate.

"You never know when or where that blood might come in handy. You can give a pint today—tomorrow you might be the one who needs a pint of blood as the result of an accident."

HE ADDED that people take the blood donor program too much for granted. He remarked that people read about the Bloodmobile in the newspaper and then throw the paper away and forget about it.

Boyer is now attending business College in Chillicothe. He hopes to to into bookkeeping or accounting when he graduates from school. He and the former Joann Cook have been married 15 months.

His decorations and ribbons number a "mere" 11. He only lacks the Congressional Medal of Honor to complete the "circuit of medals"

He received the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for bravery. He modestly says he does not know why they gave him that.

Boyer was also awarded the Silver Star, third highest award. Next in order, he has the Bronze Star with a cluster, signafying a second award for that medal. And for his wounds, he received the Purple Heart.

Here is a "living" reason why the blood donor program in Pickaway County should flow over the top.

Present Big Television Tube Seen Outmoded By Science

NEW YORK (AP)—The present method of showing television pictures on the face of a big cathode ray tube now has been outmoded in the laboratory.

The set of the future will show its picture on a set of any size you choose that can be hung on the wall like a picture or made into a panel in the wall. It may be a few years more in reaching the practical stage for home sets, but two big companies report their laboratories have cracked through the barrier of "light amplification" that has baffled scientists for generations.

Both Radio Corp. of America and General Elecric Co. say they have developed methods of amplifying light in a manner similar to that in which sound now can be amplified.

The viewing screen will contain phosphor crystals similar to those on the face of the viewing tube of your present TV set. But the picture will be produced by passing electrical current directly through the phosphors, instead of the present method of bombarding the phosphors with a stream of electronics from an electron "gun" in the back end of a cathode ray tube. The principle is applicable for color TV as well as black and white.

RCA's Board Chairman David Sarnoff announced in 1951 that he had assigned to the company's staff the task of solving the problem of light amplification and several other companies were known to have been working on similar projects. However, news that they had solved the basic problem came somewhat earlier than expected.

The development by RCA was announced in Sarnoff's yearend statement while GE sent out invitations for a press demonstration tomorrow.

Says Sarnoff:

'Eventually, through the use of electronic light, the present television picture tube will be replaced by a thin, flat picture screen on the wall, or it may be a decorative easel-like framewhich, being portable, can be moved from room to room. Each screen will be under complete control of a little box—the size of a jewel case. No electron tubes will be used, only tiny transistors."

GE says picture-on-the-wall TV is only one of the possible future uses of direct light amplification and that "it also may be useful in X-ray fluroscopy, photography, and for seeing-in-the-dark devices."

Vandalia Sewer Bills Marked Paid

DAYTON (AP)—The Board of Public Affairs at nearby Vandalia says it can't give residents a permanent cut in sewer bill rates, but it can give them a Christmas present—by marking all fourth-quarter bills paid.

The board said the gift will cost Vandalia about $6,000 and will save sewer system users an average of $9 each.

Small Investor Now Looks For Solid Stocks

Brokerages Report Small Fry Seeking Long-Haul Investment

NEW YORK (AP)—'The public is back in the stock market"—you hear that on all sides today.

This is doubtless true—if you use the term "in the stock market" in a different sense than in 1929.

Although small investors are unquestionably patronizing stock brokers boardrooms again, looking for a fast buck, there is still a larger group of the public buying stocks for keeps — the new type of investor.

Brokers say that this time, unlike 1929, people so far are more inclined to buy for the long pull—interested in building up future income or an estate for their families. Twenty five years ago the big idea was to buy into the market 'on a hot tip" and unload on late comers for a fast profit.

Interest in stocks is spreading. But, so far, for every one who is buying some shares in American industry there are at least 10 persons who are talking about stocks and showing great interest in the course of stock prices—and, as of now, mostly taking it out in talk.

All of this applies to "the public"—not to the professional stock trader. The pro is in and out of the market constantly, taking advantage of each jiggle in prices, of the rumors, of the news breaks that influence psychology.

Buying on margin has increased a little in recent weeks, as the volume of stock trading has grown. But brokers say that most buying is still done on a cash basis and not on the credit shoestring which hallmarked the 1929 boom.

Margin rules now require that purchasers put up at least half of the price of the stock in cash—whereas in 1929 many traders were doing the biggest share of their plunging strictly on the cuff.

A four million share day now is evidence of the public's reawakening interest in the stock market. But take into consideration the much larger total of outstanding shares today compared with 25 years ago, and trading loses much of its significance.

A corporation's reputation and the chances of future growth in asset value are still the top selling points in stocks with the public, brokers say, citing the continuing interest in blue chip shares even at today's high prices.

As a stock's price rises, there is a drop in yield—the ratio of the dividend you get to the price you pay for a share now. As the prices of blue chip stocks have soared, this yield has fallen pretty low in many cases.

But the public goes on buying. Partly this is due to relief that the once feared recession turned out to be unexpectedly mild. Partly it's due to belief that a soundly based prosperity lies ahead. And perhaps it's partly due to the fact that the public, so badly burned in the 1929 stock market debacle, now feels that stock exchange regulations and the new look in corporate management practices spells greater safety for the investor in shares in American industries.

Brokers add that some of the public interest in stocks could be traced to recent tax law revisions that give some measure of tax relief on income from dividends. But they all admit, also, that perhaps the biggest factor right now is a psychological one.

The public loves a bull market. It gets out of a bear market—often without its shirt. But when the bulls take over the arena, the public becomes one big mass of aficionados.

REDS HAND THREAT TO BRITISH

Lengthy Jury Huddle Said Not Unusual

Judge Not Yet Excited About Time Taken By Sheppard Trial Panel

CLEVELAND (AP)—For the fourth consecutive day, the jurors in the Sheppard murder trial went back into conference this morning.

Although they show no signs of being near a verdict, the presiding judge said the situation was not unusual.

If they remain deadlocked today, Judge Edward Blythin can ask the foreman how the jurors stand. And if he is told there is no hope of agreement, he can discharge them. This would necessitate another long and expensive trial for Dr. Samuel Sheppard, who is accused of murdering his wife.

Judge Blythin said this morning he does not consider it unusual that the jury is taking so much time. He added:

"If they were convinced they could [illegible], they would speak up, but [illegible] not had a single question [illegible] communication from them."

THE JURORS took the case at 10:13 a. m. last Friday. When they were excused last night, they had been together nearly 56 hours, and actually deliberating in the jury room just over 24 hours.

Sheppard himself looks pale, drawn and unutterably weary.

The state alleges that he killed his wife last July 4. His relations with other women, the prosecution argued, prompted the crime. Thus, the charge is first degree murder. Conviction of the charge would carry a mandatory death sentence unless the jury recommended mercy.

Sheppard steadfastly denies any guilt. He says a prowler broke into his home while he was asleep and beat his wife, Marilyn, to death. She was pregnant at the time.

Under Ohio law, a prisoner must be brought from his cell to the courtroom every time the jury recesses for meals or for the night. Thus, Sheppard has confronted them eight times since they began deliberating his fate. They went to dinner last night shortly after 6 o'clock, and were excused from the usual night session.

Each time, Sheppard hopefully

2 Sailors Held In Girl's Death

MIDDLETOWN, R. I. (AP)—Pretty Margaret Louise Blanchette, 16-year-old Sunday school teacher, was raped and strangled in the rear seat of a moving automobile yesterday—a deed for which two sailors are being held.

Frederick B. Zimmer, 25, of Rochester, N. Y., a metalsmith 1.C., was charged with murder.

Seaman Clyde D. Brunfield, 18, also of Rochester, N. Y., was charged with being accessory.

Police said Zimmer admitted he struck and strangled the Portsmouth, R. I. girl "when she began to scream" during the attack. The two sailors had volunteered to drive the girl home from a pre-Christmas dance at the enlisted men's club at the big naval base in Newport.

Spokesmen For Foundations Label Probe Report 'Biased'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for several foundations have hit back with such terms as "biased" and "flimsy" at a House committee report accusing the giant tax-free groups of promoting a socialism of "far greater menace" at home than communism.

The report was issued last night over the signatures of the three Republicans on a special five-member committee headed by Rep. Reece (R-Tenn). One of them, Rep. Goodwin of Massachusetts, dissented from many of the conclusions, including the one that the foundations promote socialism.

Representatives Wayne L. Hays of Ohio and Pfost of Idaho, the two Democratic members, filed a blistering dissent attacking the 416-page report as a "crackpot" view by persons suffering from "fear sickness."

The report signed by the GOP members pictured the nation's big foundations as comprising an "interlock" and "an intellectual cartel" which, it declared, wields tremendous leftwing power over the nation's thought and policies.

The 12-page opinion by the Democrats declared the investigation was dominated from the start by a "theme of prejudgment" against the foundations "like the theme of doom in a tragic opera."

Hays recounted that the committee's 16 stormy public hearings last May-June were abruptly called off by the GOP majority after only one profoundation witness had taken the stand.

He said he believes it might be a good idea for the new Democratic-controlled Congress to hold a set of hearings for the foundations to present their side of the case.

The lengthy GOP document ticked off a long list of names of organizations and individuals in connection with the alleged foundation-influenced "network."

Mentioned most often were the country's big three among fund groups: the Ford Foundation, the Rockefeller Foundation, several Carnegie groups, and what it called "offshoots" of the big three.

Among Carnegie organizations named were the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and the Carnegie Corp. of New York.

The GOP report also assailed the New York Times, the New York Herald Tribune and the Washington Post and Times Herald, which it said had connections with foundations and had criticized the investigation. The latter two newspapers said statements made in the report were not true.

H. Rowan Gaither Jr., president of the Ford Foundation, said the Reece investigation was "biased from start to finish" and that the report's authors apparently "regard as unAmerican every man, idea or institution with which they happen to disagree."

Dean Rusk, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, he said, while other portions "alleged to be directed at us are simply untrue."

President Joseph Johnson of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace said he would have no comment until he studied the document.

The New York Times said it would have no comment.

Mrs. Helen Rogers Reid, editor and president of the New York Herald Tribune and president of the Reid Foundation, termed "false" the report's criticism of the foundation including charge it was set up by her late husband Ogden M. Reid as "a business

Veteran's Case Seen Spur For Blood Turnout

Anyone in doubt about the merits of the Red Cross blood program can be reassured by reading the article on the back page of today's Herald.

It tells the story of Clarence Boyer, of Circleville, who was wounded during the Korean fighting and has since had 21 blood transfusions. As one highly qualified to talk on the subject, he tells how much the anonymous blood donations meant to him in Korea—and how, in truth, they represented the margin between life and death.

The story of the Circleville veteran comes as preparations are being made for the last visit of the bloodmobile to Pickaway County for this year. The unit will be at the Methodist Church in Circleville next Thursday.

It will be open for blood donations from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

Leaders of the blood program have asked for special efforts in behalf of the coming visit of the bloodmobile because the date will be only two days before Christmas. Many will be unable to visit the bloodmobile, they fear, because of pre-Christmas obligations.

Consequently, all those who can donate Thursday are urgently asked to do so.

Man Accused Of Slaying 3 Kiddies, Wife

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Harold R. Oilar's wife and three children sang Christmas carols and went to bed. A few hours later, say police, Oilar killed them with a Boy Scout hatchet.

Police and a neighbor early yesterday found the 39-year-old rug merchant unconscious from gas fumes, in an apparent suicide attempt, in his $25,000 home.

He was booked on suspicion of murder in the prison ward at the County General Hospital, where attendants said he is expected to survive. Detectives said that during questioning he muttered: "It can't be real. I've had a bad dream."

Police Lt. Wayne Bornhoft said Oilar's daughters Janet, 10, and Martha, 7, a cripple, were found with blankets over their heads, as was the son Randolph, 12, who was killed in his own room. Oilar's wife Grace Elizabeth, 39, a Sunday school teacher at Pasadena Presbyterian Church, was found dead in the master bedroom. Police said all had apparently died without a struggle, possibly in their sleep.

Neighbors described Oilar as "deeply religious." Beside him in the fume-filled bathroom were pictures of his family, taped to the walls, and a note saying:

"Only God understands. Only God can forgive.'

Another note said: 'Sell out everything to pay debts." Dr. Robert Rayburn, a neighbor, said Oilar was 'greatly in debt"

Town Apologizes For Traffic Fines

PARK HILLS, Ky. (AP) — This small community a few miles south of Cincinnati is apologetic when it fines you for a traffic offense.

"Park Hills doesn't want your money," the motorist is told in a letter handed out by Police Judge R. G. Grayson. "You need it for paying rent, buying food and doing all the things that cost more money today.

Legion Plans Show For Toys Thursday Night

Arrangements are being completed for a special "Toy Show' to be sponsored by the Circleville American Legion Thursday night in Memorial Hall.

A percentage of the proceeds will be used to buy toys and other gifts for the children of needy families in Pickaway County. The event Thursday night will be in addition to the Legion's "Toy Tour", already held here to round up second-hand toys for children facing a bleak Christmas.

Special guests at the Legion's gathering will be those who attend the Christmas Party planned earlier the same day at the Pickaway County Children's Home. The children and their guests will be admitted free.

The party at the children's home was made possible by anonymous donors when they learned that the children were anxious to give a party for other local children "in less fortunate circumstances." This gesture by the children at the home has drawn widespread praise as one of the year's best examples of the real Yuletide spirit.

THE LEGION'S entertainment Thursday will start at 8 p. m. Included in the program will be an Indian dance, Duke Hall the magician, and Jocko the Clown.

It will be the first event of this kind to be sponsored by the Legion. All those interested in the event should phone James P. Shea at 351.

Pope Preparing Brief Message

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Ailing Pope Pius XII is working on a brief Christmas message he will broadcast to the world over the Vatican radio at noon Friday.

On Christmas Day he plans to appear in the window of his study and bless a throng gathered below in St. Peter's Square.

Observers took the announcement as a new evidence of the pope's gradual improvement from the illness that threatened his life 18 days ago. It will be the pontiff's third radio message since his collapse Dec. 2.

Sparkman Says Democrats Can Top Ike On Home Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala) said today Democrats can defeat President Eisenhower in 1956 if they write a "responsible record" on domestic issues in the 84th Congress.

Sparkman, the 1952 Democratic vice presidential nominee, said he expects that Democratic cooperation with the President on foreign policy and national defense will largely eliminate them as campaign issues.

"We Democrats can defeat Eisenhower or any other Republican nominee by writing a responsible record on domestic problems, by showing what a Democratic Congress can do," he declared.

"When the people vote their natural instincts, the Democrats always win. The Republicans win only when they can upset this natural inclination, as they were able to do in 1952.

"Since then, the Republicans have been destroying the confidence which the people temporarily transferred to them. They have destroyed it by not being able to carry out the promises they made in the campaign, promises which they knew they couldn't carry out.

"The Republicans promised to balance the budget and to cut spending, among other things. Instead, they are spending 2½ billion more than President Truman did in his biggest year and the budget remains out of balance.

"I don't condemn the Republicans for this spending because I think it is necessary to build up our defenses and to join in mutual security aid to other free countries, but they had no business making promises they knew they couldn't keep."

Sparkman predicted a return of the 1952 contest which pitted Democrat Adlai E. Stevenson against Eisenhower.

Sparkman said that so far as he personally is concerned, he isn't a candidate for second place on the ticket.

Hammarskjold Ready For Trip Into Red China

Peiping Radio Quotes Chinese Judge On Case Of 11 U.S. Fliers

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold announced last night after a meeting with Communist China's ambassador to Sweden that he still plans to leave for Peiping sometime after Dec. 26, but the exact date has not been set.

As Hammarskjold conferred at a luncheon with the envoy, Gen. Keng Piao, Peiping radio broadcast further legal arguments against the release of the 11 U.S. fliers China is holding as spies.

The radio quoted a brief by a Chinese judge that the Korean armistice applied only to the North Koreans and the Chinese "volunteers" in Korea, not to the Chinese peasants and police the broadcast said had captured the airmen.

An official announcement from Hammarskjold said his 2-hour discussion with Keng was on practical matters concerning his mission to China. The secretary general will seek the release of the American airmen and all other U. N. personnel still held by the Chinese since the Korean War.

U. N. PRESS Chief Wilder Foote said details of Hammarskjold's China trip would be announced as soon as they have been settled.

He said no further meetings were planned with the Chinese before the secretary general's return to New York tomorrow.

The Peiping broadcast yesterday quoted Mei Ju-ao, a Chinese justice at the Japanese war crimes trials after World War II, as saying the case of the American fliers had nothing to do with the Korean armistice because the truce applied on the Communist side only to prisoners captured by the North Koreans and Chinese "volunteers."

This fitted in with China's contention that she officially was not involved in the Korean War.

The radio declared the fliers "were captured by Chinese peasants within Chinese territory west of Antung in Liaoning province (Manchuria)." The United States maintains they were downed in North Korea and taken to China after their capture.

Pocket Knife Surgery Aids Man

CHICAGO (AP)—An X-ray technician whose heartbeat was restored after emergency pocket knife surgery Friday still faced a fight for life today.

Lutheran Deaconness Hospital reported 24-year-old Stanley Wisniewski is still in critical condition. He collapsed to the X-ray darkroom floor three days ago and heart massage and other procedures kept him alive until his heart resumed normal beating 2 hours and 15 minutes later.

When Wisniewski suffered a heart attack, a hastily summoned surgeon made an incision with a pocket knife and began massaging his heart. Oxygen was administered and the patient was moved to an operating room where therapy and forced breathing supplemented heart massage.

CHICAGO FIREMEN James Collins (left) and Robert Kerr demonstrate inflammables of one of the toys which are appearing in the nation from Japan. The toys, in shape of a Santa Claus or mechanical race with a jockey, are made of celluloid and will burst into flame easily. The Chicago fire department said it would confiscate all such toys found.

Deputy Quits Post In Auditor's Office

Verna M. O'Hara submitted her resignation Monday as a deputy in the office of Pickaway County Auditor Fred L. Tipton, effective January 1.

Mrs. O'Hara said she did not wish to explain her action "at this time.' In a statement added to her one-sentence letter of resignation, she said:

"I feel the time has come when it is best that I resign my position in the county auditor's office, for more reasons than one. I do not wish to comment further at this time.

"However, as of this date, I am requesting that a state examiner come here as soon as possible to clear me officially in reference to the job I have held for seven years and one month.'

THE LATTER reference by Mrs. O'Hara was to the fact that she is bonded as a deputy and wishes to have her connection with the auditor's office formally ended.

Mrs. O'Hara's resignation came close on the heels of the appointment of Mrs. Mary McFarland as chief deputy in charge of the office. The appointment was announced Saturday by Tipton, who is convalescing at his Williamsport home from a long illness and major operation.

The auditor plans to return to his regular duties in the courthouse early next year. Meanwhile, he explained, Mrs. McFarland would be in charge and also represent him on the budget commission.

The commission is expected to start its annual hearings shortly after Christmas.

Mrs. O'Hara had previously been authorized to sign papers for the auditor when necessary to facilitate the work of his office. However, Tipton explained this was only in her capacity as deputy clerk for the Pickaway County commissioners.

Tipton, by virtue of his office, acts as clerk for the county commission. Hence his work in this respect has been handled recently by Mrs. O'Hara.

Real Winter Arrives Here A Day Early

CHICAGO (AP)—Winter does not officially arrive until tomorrow, but it felt like it today.

Bitter cold lay over the eastern part of the United States with freezing weather extending into the central gulf states.

And many midwestern states were mantled in snow—one to two inches over most of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Iowa; five to 10 inches in Wisconsin and Michigan.

In most of the rest of the nation, temperatures were rising and readings well above normal for this time were reported in the Northern Plains and northern Rocky Mountains. But Pellston, Mich., recorded 15 degrees below zero.

South Bend, Ind., off the south end of Lake Michigan, got 16 inches of snow in 24 hours.

A pool of cold air lying just west of the Continental Divide resulted in sharp temperature contrasts in Montana. Cutbank and Great Falls, basking in mild Pacific air flowing down the east slope, reported 45 and 42 today. Helena and Butte reported 10 degrees and 3 degrees.

5 Aged Patients Die In Home Fire

NEW ORLEANS, L.A. (AP)—Flame raced through a home for the aged last night and burned five patients to death.

Fifteen others scampered out of the one story frame building, with the physically able dragging the infirm with them. Two patients were taken to Charity Hospital.

Cause of the fire was not determined but Sidney Chase, the 14-year-old boy who discovered the smoke, said it started near the burning gas heaters in the patients' section. The boy is the cousin of the manager, Mrs. Charlene Chalk.

How Would You Write Definition For 'Democracy'?

CINCINNATI (AP)—If you had to write a definition of democracy and couldn't think of one, who would you ask?

Jan Jones, 17-year-old senior at Cincinnati's New Woodward High School, had that problem and she turned to the governor of the state, Frank J. Lausche.

Here's the answer he penned:

"Democracy to me means the unimpaired right to use my individual ability; to fully enjoy my creative powers whether manual or intellectual while at the same time according to all other fellowmen a similar right limited only by the restriction that my deeds fall within the category of moral propriety.

"Democracy means to me that I shall have untrammeled right to speak, write, worship God and enjoy fairness and justice at the hands of my government.

"It means further that what I create shall be mine and that it will not be taken away from me resulting in a destruction of my spirit and my willingness to produce for the good of mankind."

Doctor Planning To Resume Smoking

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dr. Elmer Hess, president-elect of the American Medical Assn., admits he has quit smoking but says he's going to resume.

In a radio broadcast yesterday he said he stopped using cigarettes last year "not because I am afraid of cancer of the lungs but because I was coughing my head off. I'm still coughing and I haven't been happy since I quit smoking."

Scientists have differed as to the effect, if any, of cigarette smoking on lung cancer.

Russia Fights Against West German Pact

London Is Given Same Warning As Kremlin Hurled Against French

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia today threatened to scrap the British-Soviet Mutual Assistance Treaty if the Paris agreements to rearm West Germany are ratified.

This warning was in a note handed to British Ambassador Sir William Hayter by Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko at the Foreign Ministry.

The text of the note was not immediately available but it was understood to be similar to a note given France last Thursday threatening abrogation of the French Soviet treaty.

The Soviet Foreign Ministry called a news conference for this evening and it was believed the text of the note would be made public then.

The British-Soviet treaty, designed to run for 20 years, was signed May 26, 1942.

It is a treaty of alliance and mutual assistance aimed against "Hitlerite Germany."

The two nations pledged themselves to help rebuild Europe on the terms of the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic Charter, to negotiate with no German government that failed to renounce aggression, to avoid alliances directed against each other and to take "common action to preserve peace and prevent aggression in the postwar period."

Ambassador Hayter returned to his post here on Saturday after several weeks in Paris and London for consultations.

Burke To Get Large Refund On Recount

COLUMBUS (AP) — Thomas A. Burke will get back nearly half the more than $68,000 he posted for a recount in the U. S. senatorial election race in 25 counties.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown said refunds totaled $33,664 from 24 of the 25 recount counties. Allen County still has to report, Brown said.

Burke posted more than $68,000 at the rate of $10 a precinct to recount 6,827 precincts. He actually posted more than the number of precincts indicate, Brown said. Some precincts designated by Burke were non-existent, the secretary explained.

The recount cut the winning margin of Sen. George H. Bender (R-Ohio) from more than 6,000 votes to 2,970 over Burke, his Democratic opponent.

Most counties charged Burke only the statutory minimum of $5 a precinct for the recount. Burke also got refunds of his entire $10 from 219 precincts where he gained at least four per cent on the recount above the official total for the Nov. 2 election.

Checks May Tell Cause Of Death

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Sheriff's detectives believe Louis Magyar's traveler's checks may tell what led the 60-year-old Cleveland man to the lonely desert spot where he apparently met his death.

Receipts for $200 in American Express checks were found near the scattered human bones which authorities think are the remains of the retired carpenter. Magyar's wallet was located nearby.

An American Express special agent was expected in Las Vegas today to help trace where Magyar cashed the checks. His dealings in Las Vegas may tell what he was doing and how he died.

WHEN HE CAME into the courtroom last night, Sheppard, as usual, first greeted his two brothers, Stephen and Richard. He made a peculiar little grimace as his eyes met theirs.

It was the same anxious expression that airmen exchange when they are sweating out a dangerous mission.

The jurors' faces have settled into a wooden blank when they come into court.

"I've never seen a jury like this one," a court officer said. "Usually, some hint slips out, maybe just a remark, or some little thing that tells you how it's going.

"But not these people. Once outside that jury room, they talk about everything in the world except this case. You can't even tell whether anybody is mad at anybody else, which is always a sign."

The trial lasted nine weeks. Because it has been so long and costly authorities are anxious to avoid a retrial, if possible.

Sheriff's Office Holds Suspect For Robbery

A suspect being held by the sheriff's department here is thought to have some knowledge of the Spur Station robbery and kidnapping in Circleville last week.

The suspect was taken to the London prison farm Monday morning for a lie detector test. Authorities said results of the test showed that although the suspect may not have actually taken part in the crime, he allegedly did have some criminal knowledge of it.

The suspect has been identified by Mack White, the attendant who was robbed and taken for a ride, as closely resembling one of the three men who took part in the robbery. White was able to pick out the suspect from a four-man lineup.

Sheriff's deputies were continuing their investigation. White is the father of Deputy Sheriff Carl White.

MEANWHILE, city police released a suspect they had picked up. That suspect was also given a lie detector test. He too was thought to have some knowledge of the crime.

But he was released after questioning when no further proof could be uncovered.

Russia Fights Against West German Pact

question in Western diplomatic circles in Moscow about when the British would get their notice.

Some diplomats observed the Russians should be consistent and denounce their pact with Britain also—especially in view of the fact that the British House of Commons had already approved the rearming of West Germany.

This was made even more emphatic in Moscow after French Premier Pierre Mendes-France remarked on the inconsistency in a radio broadcast Saturday night.

Most observers believed that the Russian threat at the French was aimed at influencing the Paris vote on the West German issue. Mendes-France has a very slim majority in parliament.

In Paris, Mendes-France told the French National Assembly today that the United States will contribute about $400 million in 1955 to the economic and military buildup of South Viet Nam.

Pleading with the deputies to support him in a vote of confidence later today on his Indochina policy, the premier said that in his talks here last weekend with U.S. Secretary of State Dulles he had ironed out many details of the two country's cooperation in the Far East.

The debate and vote on Indochina, which Mendes-France was expected to win by only a small majority, delayed start of the Assembly debate on the bitterly disputed Paris treaties to rearm West Germany.

DULLES ARRIVED in Washington today from the North Atlantic Treaty Council meeting in Paris, which he said has made "very important decisions unanimously and in good spirit."

Dulles, in an off-the-cuff statement, said he was glad he had had the opportunity in Paris to talk with British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden and Mendes-France.

"That enabled us to exchange views on a good many matters," Dulles said.

"We did not try to make any decision, but it brought our thinking in line and was very useful."

Divers Trying To Salvage Sunken Plane

NEW YORK (AP)—Navy divers today tried to place two crane lines around the sunken fuselage of the Italian airliner in which 26 persons died Saturday.

Working with a 35-ton floating crane, they hope to free the fuselage from four or five feet of mud at the bottom of Jamaica Bay and then ease it in one piece 1,500 feet to the shore of Idlewild Airport.

Six persons survived the crash of the Rome-to-New York plane which, coming in low over the water, hit a navigational pier and broke into sections.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, which has been checking the crash near Idlewild Airport, scheduled closed preliminary hearings today.

Investigators said the plane apparently struck the end of a 2,000-foot pier with its tail as it approached the airport through rain and mist. Officials said the pilot, Capt. Guglielmo Algarotti, 52, who had missed three earlier radar-guided approaches to the field, was warned he was coming too low.

A veteran transatlantic flier, he was among the victims.

Alabama Youth Admits Murder

BRINKLEY, Ark. (AP)—A 19-year-old Alabama youth who has admitted he swung the club which crushed the skull of pretty Mrs. Milton Fuller is in an undisclosed Arkansas jail today, waiting to be charged with first-degree murder.

Billy Ray Willingham, who left a 16-year-old wife in Alabama, said hunger drove him into the unpretentious Fuller home, and that a weird urge spurred him into killing the young mother.

Mrs. Fuller was found dying early Dec. 12 in her blood-spattered bedroom. She had been hit once with a four-foot stick of firewood. The blow crushed her skull.

Yates Co. Ads In Herald Rated Best Example By Big Agency

The Circleville Herald and the Yates Buick Company have been accorded high recognition in a special, nationwide tribute to effective advertising methods.

The Kudner Agency, Inc., one of America's foremost advertising firms, has asked permission to reproduce on a national scale two ads prepared by the Yates firm in cooperation with The Herald's advertising department. The agency, which has offices across the country, plans to use the ads in connection with a Buick used car merchandising program.

Having appeared first in The Herald, the ads will be displayed as a example of effective used car advertising.

The two ads selected by the Kudner agency as having special merit were printed as part of a series which has drawn wide attention to the Circleville firm, located at 1220 S. Court St. In one of them, headed "Yesterday or Tomorrow", D. A. Yates touches briefly on the long record of his Buick agency and the high caliber loyalty it has been able to build up among its customers.

THIS AD, in part, reads:

'In 1906 I sold my first merchandise when my father owned the Yates Hardware on West Main St. Today I still have eight of those people who bought from us 48 years ago as customers.

"Since my connection with Buick 18 years ago, we have 178 customers who have purchased from two to nine Buicks. We also have many used car repeat customers. We think that is a fairly good record.

"The products we have sold were good and we backed them up with service. . . . .

"We are extremely proud of our present clientel. They have helped us thru many a tough spot and we acknowledge our appreciation. But a business can not live on yesterday.

"It must look to tomorrow and so our thoughts are set on just how we can improve our service to you . . . . .It is impossible to bat 100 percent on service, but we try!"

IN THE OTHER ad selected for special notice, the local dealer anticipated the doubt in a prospective car buyer's mind as follows:

"You might want price or equipment or construction or style or reputation or many other items. Please let me say we think we can show you whatever you desire in a new Buick if you will give us a chance to compare."

Concluding this advertising appeal was a list of some of the outstanding credits the Buick manufacturers can claim, and another reminder that "whatever you buy must be backed by service."

Continuing Housing Probe Being Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala) proposed today a "continuing and objective study" of the operation of government housing programs but said he would oppose any probe designed to "drag out a lot of dead carcasses."

Sparkman, a senior Democrat on the Senate Banking Committee, spoke out in an interview after release of a 140-page committee report which accused the construction industry of consistently misrepresenting to Congress "the exstence of wrongdoing" in the huge postwar rental housing program.

The report, issued last night, assailed "a few greedy and sometimes dishonest builders and incompetent, lax and sometimes dishonest FHA officials" as responsible for what it called multi million-dollar "windfall" profits "at the expense of the American people."

The committee report summed up an eight-month probe of Federal Housing Administration programs. It reported finding $76 million of such profits in 437 of the 543 projects it investigated.

Children's Home Gets Another Gift

Win Koch, superintendent of the home, said 30 volumes of the encyclopedia Britannica have been donated to the home by Ernie Hill of Williamsport. "It's a splendid gift for the children," Koch said, "and we certainly intend to make good use of it. It's another one of the many kind gestures made by district residents for the children placed in our care."

Solon Warns Against Bluff Of Red China

COLUMBUS (AP)—Rep. John M. Vorys (R-Ohio), a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, says he favors a blockade of the China mainland, where 11 American fliers are imprisoned, but only if the U. S. military power can back up a blockade.

Rep. Vorys told a radio-television audience here yesterday he favors the blockade if the Chinese Communists fail to release the imprisoned flyers. But he added:

"I'd want to consult with our military leaders more than I have before we impose a blockade. We must not run a bluff and have our bluff called."

He said he did not favor counter-invasion of the China mainland if Formosa were attacked. "We must so arrange our military affairs that we don't get our ground forces committed on the mainland of Asia," Vorys declared in answer to a question put to him on the Columbus Town Meeting program.

Vorys, who recently returned from a trip through Asia and the Middle East, was interviewed by two newsmen: Francis Carpenter, Associated Press U. N. correspondent, and William Theis, Washington correspondent for International News Service.

Engineer Is Added To GE Staff Here

E. G. Grigg, manager of the General Electric Company lamp works at Circleville, announced Monday that Robert D. Coakley has been added to the lamp manufacturing quality engineering staff at the local plant.

Coakley, a native of Oregon, graduated from Oregon State in 1951 with a BS in industrial engineering. In 1953 he joined the GE engineering test program and has had assignments in Milwaukee, Bridgeport, Conn., Brockport, N. Y. and Fort Wayne, Ind., prior to his permanent assignment here.

During World War II Coakley served in the Navy as an electronics technician. He is married, has two children, and lives on E. Main St.

Coakley is replacing H. J. Riedeman who has been appointed foreman of the mounting section at the local plant. Riedeman replaces D. H Beaumont, who has transfered to one of the Cleveland Lamp Division works.

A-Electric Power Boom Predicted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A consultant says atomic energy will provide 45 per cent of the nation's electric power by the year 2000.

H. Dewayne Kreager, executive officer of the Office of Defense Mobilization until mid-1953, surveyed the A-power possibilities.

He predicted that atomic-powered generators will become economically competitive with coal and oil-fueled plants by 1965, and that by 1975 they will be producing between 30 and 45 million kilowatts of the 300 million required.

From 1975 to 2000, he forecast, 80 per cent of the new generating capacity installed will be atomic.

Railway Reinstates Cincy Engineer

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Southern Railway System has reinstated an engineer whose discharge prompted a six-hour strike, a company spokesman announced last night.

The brief walkout Friday did not interfere with train operations.

Union leaders said the engineer, James Sullivan of Ludlow, Ky., had been discharged because he refused to follow company instructions to run his engine at greater speeds in the railroad yards than he deemed safe. The company said Sullivan, a railroader for 41 years, had been reinstated "under conditions satisfactory to both sides."

Hal Boyle Says:

Learn To Bite Your Wine

NEW YORK (AP)—If you plan to serve wine at your Christmas dinner, show your guests you're a real connoisseur.

"Bite wine?" you ask.

Certainly you have to bite wine to get its full flavor. Anyone who doesn't is almost as big an ignoramus as a guy who tries to drink a sirloin steak through a straw.

Truthfully, I'm not an old hand at wine biting myself. Never even heard of it until I ran into Baron Johannes Fredericus Leonardus Von Munchinger, a wine importer here who threw away his title to become Leo Van Munching, American citizen.

With the ex-baron wine isn't merely a drink. It's a lifelong courtship. He has sampled more than 1,000 brands.

But Van Munching is saddened by the fact that wine drinking in America often is associated by the public with an atmosphere of snobbery.

"Your real connoisseur is never a snob," he insisted. "Only the showoffs who pretend to be connoisseurs are snobs, those who pretend to know more about wine than they really do.

"But Americans learn easily, and there is no reason why they should not find it simple to acquire an adequate knowledge of wines. It merely takes a little practice and the learning of a few simple rules. One isn't born with a feel for wines. It is acquired."

To savor a wine properly you have to slurp it (quietly, of course, unless everybody at the table is an old buddy) as well as bite it.

Here's how, according to Van Munching:

"To start with, you pour out only half a glass. Then you roll it around and around, gently, sniffing the aroma."

OK, you are now nose-happy. On to the next step:

"Take a sip. Let it run through your teeth and around your tongue, so that it touches all your palate."

Now your palate is dazed with the wonder of it all. The lesson continues:

"Then you bite into it, and—" said Van Munching.

"You just bite once?" I broke in. "Don't you munch on it for a while?"

"Please, I am speaking of wine, not graham crackers," said Van Munching. "You bite the wine once, and let it roll down your throat slowly . . . very slowly."

Now you know the wine and the wine knows you, and you are entitled to pour a full glass and go on with the meal.

The beginner should first acquaint himself, Van Munching said, with the sight, smell and taste of the four basic fine wines —Burgundy, bordeaux, rhone and champagne. Then he is equipped, with pocketbook and palate ready, to go exploring on his own.

Van Munching himself is partial to champagne.

"It is a wonderful thing," he said. "It helps tone your system. You can return to it all day and never get high."

Rose champagne is popular with the international set because of its unusual color and sweet-dry taste. The beer set is still sticking to a foamy amber.

"What do you do with leftover wine at a dinner—that is a problem to many hostesses?" I asked. Van Munching looked as hurt as if I had stabbed him in the back with a corkscrew.

"The true connoisseur is he who drinks what's left over," he said sternly. "Only the imposter saves the remainder for next time."

Maybe he's right. But anybody who goes in for much wine biting soon learns one thing. Wine isn't altogether helpless. It can bite right back.

MINIMUM WAGE FIGHT

A FEDERAL MINIMUM wage law of 75 cents an hour now applies to 24 million workers in the United States. Labor Secretary Mitchell proposes to raise the minimum to 85 or 90 cents an hour. He would also extend the coverage to several million more workers by taking in service industries like laundries and retail stores such as those dispensing groceries, dry goods and hardware.

This proposal, not yet approved by the President and his administration policy makers, will run into trouble from two sources. Business leaders claim it would increase costs, compel them to raise prices and thus would be inflationary. Conservatives in Congress will be quite a hurdle.

The conservative Republican bloc would probably be against it and Southerners, who will head most of the committees in the next Congress, will be hostile. The South is attracting northern industries and would oppose boat rocking by Congress. Even some Dixie members of Congress who pose as "liberals" would endanger their political lives by voting to disrupt the southern economy.

The proposal is certain to get into Congress and will become a major issue. If it divides the Northern and Southern Democrats, that party will be unable to continue citing the divided Republican party as the horrible example.

MAKING HEADWAY

UNCLE SAM'S larder of strategic metals required for the nation's stockpile of critical materials is more than half filled, reports the Office of Defense Mobilization. The agency has advised Congress that it has purchased and sored 61 per cent of the $7 billion worth of minerals allocated for the program, with nine per cent on order awaiting delivery.

But the ODM adds that there are 18 critical items on which purchases are 50 per cent or more behind the fixed minimum objectives.

It is not revealed in what items stockpiling is lagging, or what materials go into the stockpile. Classified, you know. Consensus of guesses appears to be that 35 to 40 minerals and metals are included in the list.

The long-term program has two objectives. One is to insure that the nation has a sufficient stock of materials that might not be available from abroad in event of war. The second is to bolster domestic production of ores and metals that would prove useful in wartime.

It is consoling to learn that the government is making good headway getting the stockpiles built up. It will be better news when the job is done. But the secrecy seems ludicrous. Is there anyone who want to bet the Russians do not know what is going into the stockpiles?

George E. Sokolsky's

These Days

The issue of war or peace is always a dread and divisive one. It is rare, in modern times, that a statesman has willingly assumed the responsibility of starting a war; therefore all wars are called defensive and the people of each country involved in a war are led to believe that they have been attacked by a merciless enemy.

On the other hand, Hitler and Stalin both devised techniques of statecraft which made it possible for them to give the impression of desiring peace while conducting a war. The master of this paradox was Stalin who evolved the processes of penetration and infiltration as weapons of war in peace-time — weapons as effective as any constructed in an arms factory. American policy has often been confused by a failure to identify these techniques with the result that we have suffered some major defeats as in China, Korea and Indochina.

Be it noted that our principal defeats have been in Asia, not in Europe. That reason is that while our diplomacy has been concentrated on Europe, Soviet Russia's imperial efforts have been concentrated on Asia since 1945. Furthermore, while our statesmen are familiar with European affairs and characteristics, they are tragically ignorant of Asiatic affairs and characterisics and have been misled by a group of experts who have tended to support either Russia or Communism.

Having said this, we might make a comparison. Great Britain, for instance, is not in a geographic position to court war. It is now the most vulnerable area in Europe. It can be bombed out of existence. It can be destroyed by both the offensive and defensive forces. The British therefore must favor every effort toward peace, short of conquest by peaceful means, because war can only mean total destruction.

This has nothing to do with the character, the courage, the history or the quality of the British people. It is a matter of geography, of the concentration of population and industry.

Red China faces different problems: four million square miles in territory adjacent to Soviet Russia for about 4,000 miles, backed by a vast hinterland, capable of a low standard of living among a people accustomed to inadequate food supplies, without a notable concentration of industry anywhere in the country, and accessible to supplies from Soviet Russia without crossing an ocean.

Therefore while Great Britain cannot afford a war, Red China can risk greatly for the development and expansion of empire. Actually, Red China benefits by every move made against the "white" countries because all Asiatic nations, even the friendly ones, have a long hsitory of umbrage from and antagonism to those European countries that in the past regarded all pigmented peoples as inferiors. It is as much a case of getting even, as it is Marxism or imperialism.

Such situations in the past have made for war. Sooner or later, anger, fouled dignity, outraged national honor develop into war. It would appear that it is now the policy of Soviet China to twit the United States, to abuse this country, to create unnecessary sensations, all designed to establish the fact that we are afraid to fight. It may be small-boy tactics, but it is nonetheless outrageous and unbearable.

Consider Baby's Safety When Buying Him Toys

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

WITH Christmas only a few days away, you'll probably want to buy some toys for that new baby.

Maybe he's your own, or maybe he belongs to a relative or a friend. But there's usually somebody's baby on every Christmas gift list.

Choosing Baby's Toys

Baby toys require some thought. While some are practical, and will be welcomed by the baby and his parents, others might prove injurious.

Of course, all babies like rattles, but the wrong kind of rattle can be extremely dangerous. Don't buy rattles filled with stone or shot. If the baby breaks or bites through it, he is liable to choke.

Some to Avoid

Toys with rough surfaces, sharp points or edges, tin toys or wooden toys that splinter easily should also be avoided. Marbles or small beads are not for babies, either.

Other toys on the "should not give" list are:

Loose-jointed toys with parts that might break off; toys made of lead or painted with ordinary paint containing lead; glass bottles of any kind; wooly, hairy toys which catch dirt and cannot be kept clean; toys that are so heavy the baby might injure himself playing with them.

No Trains, Pop!

And finally—and this probably will be a blow to Pop—no mechanical toys or trains which must be operated by a grownup. These may amuse the baby for a few seconds, but they'll soon bore him. Wait until he gets to be about four or five years old.

Toys a baby can enjoy without danger are safe plastic rattles filled with plastic materials, large rubber dolls, soft balls, unpainted blocks and even empty spools. As for colors, an infant prefers red, blue, green and yellow. He likes strong, clear colors better than pale shades.

These Are Good Choices

When a baby begins to walk, he'll especially enjoy some sort of toy he can pull behind him. A large rubber ball is an ideal gift for babies between one and two.

One more tip for parents. If your baby receives a lot of toys this Christmas, put some of them away immediately. You can give them to him when he tires of those you do let him play with.

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

ANOTHER day of rain and Gary Norbeck found himself waiting for Enid to come. She had said she would.

He explained his eagerness in anticipating it by the fact that he had something to tell her. That Bressi was sending his canvas back to him and she could have it, if she still wanted it.

He was far from discouraged by its return. Bressi had written that it was not up to others of Gary's he had seen in the past.

Gary had read the letter a dozen times since he had got it, the day before. It lay open on his work table now and he reread some of it.

"I have often wondered what had become of you. I made a few inquiries but no one seemed to know. Then I came to the conclusion that you had abandoned your painting, which possibility, when I contemplated it, gave me deep regret for I felt you had more promise than most young artists and also the will to work hard, which, put together, should have taken you far. Where is Killbuck and why are you there? I am hoping that some day you will come to Boston and stop in to see me. I would like a good talk with you."

"The will to work . . ." That had been before he met Ursula.

Near noon, Enid appeared in the door, a gray figure in her hood and raincoat And Gary felt the impulse to kiss her as he had before. He checked it, said: "Come in. I was looking for you!"

She took off the coat, the hood, slipped out of her boots, came in, barefooted, carrying a box in her hand.

"You've had your long walk?"

"No, I've been cleaning the kitchen. And I made a pie—a lemon pie. It was quite exciting—I never made one before. Oh, back in school but with the domestic science teacher telling me every little thing to do. Silly to be proud of a pie, but I am! I gave half of it to Cindy and Aunt Jennie, but I brought the rest with me—if you'd dare eat it!"

She sat down on the stool.

"I am getting somewhere," she said. "By the process of eliminating what I can't do. I'm good with figures—my best grades in school were in math—I thought I might study to be an accountant."

"Figures are not dull," she countered. "They are real—they never change and you know what they are—you don't have to guess! You put them together . . "

Gary said: "I want something different for you!" He stopped abruptly. What did he want for her?

Enid said: "But I think I'd like it—and isn't it best for one to do what one can do and likes to do? You do your paintings . . ."

"Here — read this letter." He gave her the letter.

She read it, then a second time as if she were learning something from it. Then she looked up at him. "You will send him more? I mean—like the ones you painted before — the good ones? You'll really work?"

"Yes, I'll work! If it's in me to do it!" Then a smile broke the soberness of his face. "Do you know, girl, that you'd be good for me? A slave driver—that is what I need!"

She glanced over the room. "Maybe you should go away from here—maybe you're too shut in with yourself here to get ideas of what you want to paint."

"That's something to think about," he answered. Then: "What say we eat?"

As they ate, Gary told her more about Bressi. "He's one of the best critics in the country—has a gallery in Boston. If you have anything you've done hung in one of his exhibits you're getting places!" He told of Bressi's kindness to him, when he was beginning to paint, Bressi's encouragement. "Everyone else thought I was a fool to chuck college so as to give all my time to painting, but Bressi didn't."

She asked, "You have a family?"

"I did then. Not much of a one—a grandfather and a brother. I've only the brother now and he despises me, so I don't count it a relationship."

Enid said: "I'm awfully confused about relationships. I do think everyone has a right to be free! I've talked about it—yes, I told you I had to feel free of my mother. And now, lately, I'm worried about her—she isn't herself at all. Maybe you can't get wholly free of others. There are strings . . ."

Enid cut the pie, and as they started to eat it Enid gave a cry of disappointment.

"It's awful! I must have forgotten something — put something wrong in it! And I was so proud of it!"

Then with tears in her eyes she began to laugh, and Gary laughed with her."Oh, not too bad! Let's finish it!"

"No, no! And what'll Cindy and Aunt Jennie think of me? That I am useless . . ."

"What — you a future accountant? Bet neither of them can add up a column of figures!"

They washed the dishes. They disposed of the pie. "I'm going to make a good one," Enid declared. "I found an ancient cookbook on a kitchen shelf—but next time I'll ask Cindy."

"Strings?" said Gary, smiling.

"Yes, strings."

Then she put on her boots, her raincoat, her hood.

"Yes."

A letter came the next week to Hester from Anne Babbit. It read:

"Darling:

"I was in too horrible a rush to write you before I left Buffalo and you will observe that I left before the pageant. I simply was not going to stay and see Lydia Holzworth featured in a big way when it should have been you! I'm here in Salem with my cousin Janet Price for two weeks, then going to Bar Harbor. Any chance of your joining me there?

"This Gary Norbeck you wrote to me about—the name of Norbeck was familiar to me because of the Norbeck Mills. But I never knew any of the family. I figured this man who you said had been a man-of-all-work for your uncle might be some distant, poor relation. But, NO.

"The second day I was here, Janet took me to a bride luncheon —12 women. And straight off I was introduced to a Mrs. Alec Norbeck. Incidentally, she is the most stunning gal I've ever seen! She sat across from me at the table and I asked her: 'Is your husband any relation of Gary Norbeck's?' She laughed and said: "Very much of one — they're brothers.' But when I asked her there was the queerest hush as if each one at the table held their breath. Then, quick, one of them started talking madly about something else. I still wasn't certain this brother and your man were the same, but before we sat down to play she came up to me and asked if were a friend of Gary's. I said he was a friend of a friend of mine who was spending the summer in Killbuck where he lives. And she said: 'Oh, yes, Killbuck. Gary's ridiculous, living in a place with such a name.' So then I knew they were the same. But, Hester, I wish you could have seen her face when she said it—well, probably you've seen a cat's face when it sights its prey and she looked just that way.

"The moment we got home I asked Janet to give me the low-down about it. And she had it—she's older than Mrs. Alec's set but she gets in with them quite a bit. Seems this Gary Norbeck is the black sheep of the family. Simply no good, Janet has heard some say. He wouldn't finish college, wouldn't go into the Mills, just hung around night clubs and cocktail lounges. Pretended to be an artist, but Janet said no one ever saw anything he had painted. He was in the Navy for a part of the war and while he was away Alec married his girl. When Gary came back he went on seeing her. It was the big scandal at the time. That was when mother was living in Florida and I wasn't coming back to Salem so I missed it all.

"But there was more, Janet said. His grandfather died very suddenly and after the funeral Gary Norbeck simply disappeared. He had to disappear or else be charged with the murder of his grandfather for he had knocked the old man down!

"That's your man, darling. I hope this dope is what you want. It's fantastic to think of a brother-in-law of Mrs. Alec as a farmhand but funny things do happen. If you are having the fellow do any work for you, I'd discharge him.

"I ran into Hubert on the street downtown a day or so before I left Buffalo. You don't have to worry about him—he looked very well.

"'By now. This is a long letter for me. I'm exhausted.

"Love, Anne."

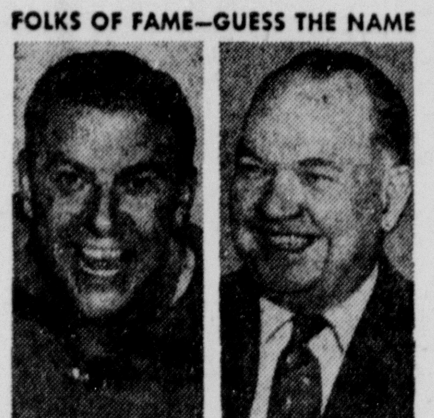
FOLKS OF FAME—GUESS THE NAME



1—He planned on becoming a high school music teacher, but his father died and he was forced to give up college, although he had succeeded in mastering such "musical" instruments as a slide whistle, "sweet potato," a set of bicycle horns, a washboard, and a frying pan as well as nine "legitimate" musical instruments. After several years as a staff musician with Buffalo radio stations, he went to New York where his Howdy Doody network television show has been a success. What is his name?

2—This business executive was born in Hackensack, N. J., in 1904. His first job was with a New York electric bond and share company in New York City. Also in New York he was secretary and treasurer of the Electric Power and Light company and the United Gas corporation. His home is still in New York City, but he has held executive positions with Arkansas, Louisiana, New Orleans and the Mid South power companies. He is a partner in the power company involved in the controversial sale of electricity to the AEC. Who is he?

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles are slowly reversing and repudiating the historic policy of self-determination of small peoples pioneered by Woodrow Wilson at the Versailles Peace Conference and reiterated by Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Atlantic Charter. But neither statesman is especially happy over the necessity for the shift.

In supporting such colonial powers as Britain, France and the Netherlands against the demands of certain overseas elements for full freedom, the White House concedes that it has taken this step only in the interest of Allied unity in the face of the Russian menace. Both Eisenhower and Dulles, almost apologetically, explain their action on the basis of international expediency.

IDEALISM—I retrospect, and despite the idealism which motivated their self - determination program, the Wilson-Roosevelt slogans have weakened the Western World's resistance to dictators of the Fascist or Communist ariety.

Breaking Europe into small and helpless pieces at Versailles made it much easier for Hitler to swallow them one by one, and eventually bring on World War II. Similarly, Moscow was able to absorb the Baltic, Central European and Balkan States after World War II because of the divisions that had been created on the circumference of Russia.

Still under the spell of international idealism, Roosevelt and former President Truman contributed to this debilitating movement. F.D.R. helped to win independence for India and Indonesia by exerting pressure on London and the Hague. Truman helped to create the new state of Israel, antagonizing the Arabs. He also intervened to persuade the British to withdraw from Egypt, although actual abandonment was negotiated only last July.

Thus, Washington forced Winston Churchill to swallow his statement that "I did not become the King's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire!"

ISSUES—The worldwide wave of nationalism thus inspired has not yet spent itself, the most controversial issues before the General Assembly of the United Nations involve the demands of nationalities for the right to decide their own destinies.

The Greeks on the key sland of Cyprus in the Eastern Mediterranean insist upon separation from Britain and union (enosis) with Athens, The French protectorates of Tunisia and Morocco in North Africa want self-government. Primitive peoples on the island of Netherlands New Guinea seek to become members of the Indonesian Republic.

The European powers maintain that these are internal questions not susceptible to United Nations action. At first, the United States tried to take a hands-off attitude in these controversies, fearing support of London, Paris and the Hague would enable the Communists to assail us as "colonialists" and "imperialists."

OUTPOST —But considerations of world defense against the Russian threat now incline us to oppose these demands for independence or a shift of allegiances. All the territory in dispute represents strategic outposts in the cold or possibly hot war.

Now that Britain has pulled out of Egypt, Cyprus provides the only strong Allied base for planes, submarines and supplies in the Eastern Mediterranean. We have studded North Africa with airfields that might be jeopardized, if rule were turned over to the natives. Abandonment of New Guinea would open the vast South Pacific, including Australia and New Zealand, to a Russian advance by sea and air.

Thus, and ironically, if freedom is denied to these people, they can blame it on the proletarian politicians in the Kremlin, but they will probably hold the United States largely responsible for the defeat or deferment of their nationalistic ambitions.

William Lyon Phelps was the kind of professor all Yale undergraduates loved. He told funny anecdotes, he gave high marks—and his examinations usually were comparative snaps. Imagine the consternation of one of his classes, therefore, when the good Dr. Phelps, in a contrary mood, suddenly sprang a tough quiz on the boys—and just before the Yuletide holidays, too!

One hapless student gazed helplessly at the questions, then wrote: "God knows the answers, Dr. Phelps. All I can say to you is Merry Christmas." He got his paper back with this note scrawled across the top by Billy Phelps: "God gets an A. You get an F. Happy New Year!"

Household Hints

Sausage and fried apples taste wonderful for Sunday breakfast. For an extra-pretty platter, nestle a few sprigs of parsley around the sausage and fill the center of the apple rings with a little whole cranberry sauce or a tiny round of jellied cranberry sauce.

Make sure you remove all spots and stains from clothing before putting into hot water, or before ironing, because the heat of the water or the iron will tend to set them.

Is your family tired of the same old French toast? Try substituting pineapple or orange juice for the milk in your usual recipe, and dust with cinnamon-sugar before serving.

HOLIDAY SEPARATES — of velveteen and silk-and-rayon "Renaissance" brocade. Gold and red are combined for the skirt and the snug camisole, strapped over the shoulders. The gold jacket buttons to the waist.

Mrs. Lovett Is Dinner Hostess To Sewing Club

Mrs. Robert Lovett of Town St. was hostess to members of the Pitch-In Sewing club for an annual husband's night party.

A carry-in supper was enjoyed as opening highlight of the evening. The Lovett home was decorated throughout with Christmas greens and other symbols of the holiday season.

Election of officers for the coming year was held during a short business meeting. Mrs. Orville Baker will serve as president in 1955, Mrs. Wilbur Ferguson, vice president and Mrs. Charles Bartholomew, secretary

Mrs. Bartholomew presented each of the members and a guest, Miss Louise Marshall, with a corsage. Mrs. Harry Peters was awarded the traveling gift for the evening.

Contests were conducted by Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Bartholomew during a social hour. Winners were: Mrs. Miles Bell, Mrs. Roy May, Mrs. Sherman Barr, Harry Peters and Mr. Bell.

Mystery sisters were revealed during a gift exchange which climaxed the session. Mrs. Barr will serve as hostess to the next meeting of the club Jan. 19 in her home on Town St.

Spices Date Back To Early Biblical Tales

With Christmas almost here, thoughts turn back to Bible times, when spices were precious and often had a religious significance.

The first mention of spices in the Bible is in the Book of Genesis, Chapter 37, in connection with the story of Joseph:

"And they lifted up their eyes and looked, and behold, a company of Ishmaelites came from Gilead with their camels bearing spicery and balm and myrrh, going into Egypt."

Later, after Joseph had been sold into Egypt, and had become a power there, Jacob sent his sons to Egypt for corn to keep his people from starving. And Jacob said to his sons: "Carry down the man a present, a little balm, a little honey, spices, and myrrh, nuts and almonds."

In the book of Exodus, spices are mentioned in the story of the wanderings of the children of Israel.

Spices are not mentioned as frequently in the New Testament. When Jesus was speaking to the Scribes and Pharisees, he said, according to Matthew 23:23: "Ye pay tythe of mint and anise and cumin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgement, mercy and faith."

Again, in Matthew, Jesus also speaks of the power of faith "even if it be no greater than as a grain of mustard seed."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many an old man, tossed out on the street because he couldn't pay his rent, has spent the rest of his days reflecting mournfully on his folly with money in his early years.

Looking for dividends to keep him in his old age, he had invested his money long ago. Wisely, he thought. He learned too late his judgment was bad. He had put too much into one stock, not enough in another.

This country is still young, as nations go, with a lot of money. The Eisenhower administration, present custodian of it, is trying to avoid for the American future the fate which overtook the old man.

It is trying to economize to save money and at the same invest where it thinks there will be dividends in the long run. Both the saving and the investment are a guess and a risk.

In the 1952 presidential campaign the Republicans talked of balanacing the budget. They promised economy and they've practiced it in many areas. But they still haven't been able to hit a balance

The country is 278 billion dollars in debt now, most of it money borrowed to fight World War II and communism afterwards. Balancing the budget would not wipe out the debt. It would only mean the administration had found a way to keep the debt from getting bigger.

Some presidential advisers — particularly Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey and Joseph M. Dodge, former budget director —are pictured as stern partisans for more economy and a balanced budget, and for this reason:

That if the United States is to retain its power in the long fight against communism it must be economically sound by living within its means and meeting its responsibilities within a balanced budget.

But there is another side to this tortured problem for the Eisenhower administration:

What does it profit to balance the budget if, in the end, the Communists win because this country, in its desire for economy, doesn't spend enough money in the right places, in the right ways, and at the right times?

This dilemma is illustrated in the decisions the administration is trying to make on military manpower and foreign aid, particularly aid for Asia.

The administration apparently doesn't think war likely, at least soon. President Eisenhower himself talks of the cold war lasting 50 years. Throughout that time the United States must be strong enough to deter aggression.

How can it be done? The government could try to maintain a huge military force, but the budget couldn't be balanced, and if no war came the money spent would be, perhaps, money wasted.

The government could economize by putting more reliance on strategic bombers which can carry atomic weapons and reducing the size of the land forces while building up the reserves in case of emergency.

That involves a risk since in an emergency this country might not be able to mobilize fast enough. It's a risk the administration seems willing to take for the sake of economy over the long pull.

In Asia the Communists have had major success. They may try further military force or internal subversion.

Meanwhile, they are using the other means at hand: propaganda, political maneuvering, infiltration, and, where they think it worthwhile, economic aid.

If the United States refuses to give economic help to Asia, that would leave the field to the Communists. The administration, again for the sake of economy, is trying to decide how little aid it can get by with successfully.

The Communists may take over Asia anyway, no matter how much help this country provides. But if this country gives too little aid, it may be just as ineffective as no aid at all.

Wolves In Texas Outsmart Hunters Armed With Bows

Timber wolves have been preying on sheep around here. A week ago yesterday 275 hunters with guns staged a mass hunt and nary a wolf.

This past weekend six members of the Dallas Field and Archers Assn. tried it. They used a "hurt rabbit" call that goes "wayeh, whayeh" to lure the prey but returned yesterday empty-handed.

Said I. L. Abernathy? "The high wind was probably the reason. You have to blow the call downwind, but in a high wind like last night the wolves picked up our scent. We saw a lot of eyes, but they never got close enough for us to bother shooting."

Bikini Suits Banned On Town Streets

NANTUCKET, Mass. (AP)—Selectmen say they don't like the idea of Bikini bathing suits on Nantucket streets—in the summer.

Even as the blustery winter winds blew, the selectmen yesterday approved a proposed town bylaw which says everyone over 12 must be covered "to a point midway the hip and knees" if they wander from the beaches.

Selectmen said they approved the proposal at this time of the year since it must be acted on at the Feb. 15 town meeting.

Driver Demerit Bill Readied

COLUMBUS (AP)—State Rep. Samuel L. Devine (R-Franklin) says the Legislature convening next Jan. 3 will get another proposal for a driver demerit system.

Devine is drafting a proposed safety program bill to include annual auto inspection and adult driver education requirements. A measure including provisions for inspection and a demerit system died in committee in 1953.

Flimsy Clothing Top Fire Peril For Children

If you have any children in the "let's pretend" ages, part of your Christmas shopping will be easy.

The choice of gifts will probably be made for you, in the form of demands for the latest in space suits, cowboy outfits or whatever other costumes their current make-believe lives call far. And you had better follow instructions to the letter, because even a misplaced stud on a holster will be spotted!

But the most important detail, the National Board of Fire Underwriters emphasizes, is something the youngsters do not even notice. It is this: make sure those costumes are flame resistant!

Last June, a partial victory in the fight against the sale of flammable garments was achieved with the passage by Congress of Public Law 88, known as the "Flammable Fabrics Act." Nevertheless, this is a minimum law, and does not fully protect the consumer.

As Edward F. Howrey, chairman of the Federation Trade Commission (policing agency for the law) warns, "The act merely forbids the sale of those fabrics which are especially hazardous. Fabrics of normal flammability can still result in casualties if the wearer is careless with fire or sparks."

What can you do to protect your children?

First, when buying a costume of flimsy material, see if it is labelled as being flame-resistant. Occasionally you can find one that is. But even if you do, make sure washing or dry-cleaning do not lessen or destroy the flame-resistance

In the case of untreated costumes, you can easily do the job yourself. Just dip the cloth (assuming it is washable) in a solution of 9 ounces of borax and 4 ounces of boric acid to a gallon of water. Wring by hand and hang to dry. The flame resistance is not affected by ironing, but the treatment must be repeated after every laundering.

Use this treatment on filmy party dresses and doll clothes, too—and it's equally good for grown-ups' clothing and for washable draperies and other household furnishings.

A word of caution. Do not expect too much of the term, "flame-resistant." If you hold a match to a flame-resistant fabric, it will burn. But it will not continue to burn when you take the match away. Your children will be safe from a deadly or disfiguring "flash fire"!

Methodist Service

A special Christmas service will be held by the South Bloomfield Methodist charge next Thursday from 7:30 p. m. to 8:30 p. m. The Rev. Paul E. Lindsey, pastor, announced the arrangements for churches in the charge. The Rev. Abts will be the main speaker.

Crime Rate Up

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden's crime rate is mounting. The Central Bureau of Statistics reports crimes of all types totaled 55,196 in the third quarter this year, more than 3,000 above the corresponding period of 1953.

Christmas Memories

A Scrapbook Compiled by Clark Kinnaird

WHO first coupled "merry" with "Christmas" in the coinage of the most familiar seasonal greeting? Perhaps George Wither, 16th century English poet who wrote:

"For Christmas comes but once a year,
And then they shall be merry.
Hang Sorrow, care will kill a cat,
And therefore let's be merry."

An Irish poet was moved to comment:

"For Christmas comes but wanst a year,
And when it comes it brings good cheer,
And when it goes it laves us here,

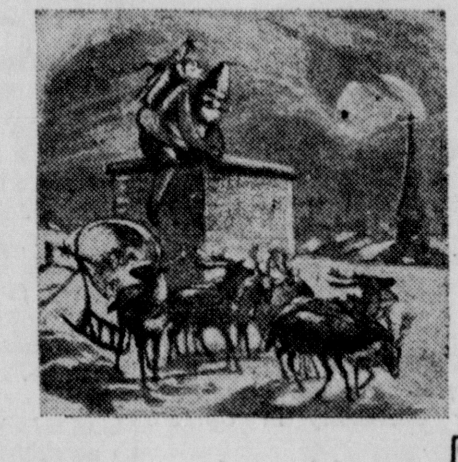
The extent to which the present national character of Christmas observance is of recent origin is indicated by turning back to a popular encyclopedia of a century ago. The following is the complete entry on Christmas in The New American Cyclopedia, 16 vols., 1859 edition:

"In the United States, since the Puritans were at first stern opponents of Christmas pastimes, the day has been less generally celebrated in New England than in the middle and southern states. It has been made a legal holiday in some of the states, and is usually observed by a religious service and by making presents, and not infrequently by trimming houses and churches with evergreens, and by imitating the German custom of Christmas trees."

This Cyclopedia has no reference to St. Nicholas or Santa Claus.



This [→] was the popular concept of Santa Claus in those days. It is the illustration used by Harper's Magazine with its publication of C. C. Moore's "A Visit from St. Nicholas" in the Christmas issue, 1857.

It will not be solved by scattering billions of dollars like rain over the paddy fields of Southeastern Asia It will not be solved by peaceful proclamations which can only encourage Mao ze-tung and Chou En-lai to do more of the same. It can only be handled by some show of force because the Chinese have never, in their long history, responded to anything but force.

China has always been involved in wars, internal and external. Its reputation for peace comes from the writings of its philosophers rather than the records of its history. But how does one employ force without risking a universal war? And is force to be used today or five years later?

These are questions of national policy upon which the future of our country depends, and they can only be answered by the President of the United States, whoever he may be, because upon him alone falls this heavy responsibility. If he makes too many mistakes in judgement, it will be very unfortunate because no historic mistake, of international magnitude, can be corrected except by war or revolution. If he is wise, our strength will save us.

SURIN an Original Contribution to RELIEF OF RHEUMATIC-ARTHRITIC PAIN*

DON'T TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT—but rely on the published medical report on SURIN, which proves its effectiveness in relieving arthritic-rheumatic pain! SURIN was tested for months by doctors in a famous clinic . . . tested on chronic rheumatic patients with these significant results.

DOCTORS FOUND—that when SURIN is applied at the point of pain, its unique ingredient, acetyl beta methyl choline penetrates quickly, deeply to step up the action of the analgesic drug in 3 out of 4 cases . . . speeding pain relief in minutes! Clinicians who tested it stated that with an increased period of temporary relief at point of pain, patients often experience increased freedom of joint movement. This is the substance of solid facts published in a medical journal.

Dogs In Florida Near Paradise

Three women are out rounding up all the stray dogs in this community, collecting dog good for Christmas Week feasts and for the weeks to come.

Peggy Davis, policewoman here, and Mrs. George England and Mrs. Joe Borders even plan a Christmas tree for homeless pups and if they are real good, like youngsters should be at this time of the year, the dogs will be put up for adoption.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Edgar Muemink, 43, was shot yesterday when his dog leaped into the back seat of his car, discharging a rifle that lay there. Muemink, who had been standing beside the car, was hospitalized with wounds in the right hand and hip.

tate Rules For Tax Valuation over Property Wear-And-Tear

A set of new rules recently opted by the State Board of Tax peals for the valuation of real operty for taxation purposes has ven Pickaway County residents a r idea what a county-wide reap- aisal due next year will mean to e average home-owner.

In setting forth the new set of gulations, the state board em- nasized that the auditor in each f Ohio's 88 counties must "abide y, follow and comply with" all f them. A copy of the state's ompulsory "yardstick' was or- ered sent to each county aud- or, county prosecutor, county easurer, and each member of he board of county commission- rs.

Recognizing the importance of new rules for district taxpay- s, The Herald in two previous ar- les has listed some of the more portant regulations. Today's ar- le concludes this series, resum- g the list of rules at that point here it was ended in The Herald sue of last Friday.

Included in the final installment day is the important section on preciation and obsolescence of perty.

(C) COMMERCIAL AND INDUS- RIAL—Each building should be easured to determine the number square feet or cubic feet it contains, and a sketch drawn on the operty record card.

The exterior and interior of each ilding should be inspected and aded according to quality of con- ruction.

Replacement cost schedules uld be based on the prices of bor, materials, architect's or en- neer's fees, plus contractor over- ead and profit, and other charges, evailing in the area to be apprais- in January 1950.

(D) FARM—Each building should measured to determine the umber of square feet or cubic feet contains, and a sketch of the welling or dwellings drawn on the roperty record card. If the barn is gular in shape, it should be etched on the property record rd. All other buildings should be umbered, the number inclosed in rcle to appear in the space for etch of buildings, in its proper cation to the house and barn.

The exterior and interior of each ilding should be inspected and aded according to quality of con- ruction.

Replacement cost schedules uld be priced according to the bor and materials prevailing in e area to be appraised during anuary 1950

Replacement cost schedules hall include all farm buildings (ex- luding the farm dwelling which hould be priced according to the esidential schedule, less deprecia- on and obsolescence, particularly unctional obsolescence due to lo- ation), including general and spe- l type barns, milk houses, ma- hinery sheds, granaries, corn ribs, silos, hog houses, poultry ouses, and other miscellaneous arm buildings.

One set of all building schedules every class, type and grade hould be on file in the county aud- or's office and open for public in- pection during regular office ours. A duplicate of all schedules hould be filed with the Division of unty Affairs of the Board of Tax peals.

RULE 109

DEPRECIATION AND OBSO- ESCENCE — Actually, deprecia- ion is the loss in value from any ause. In appraisal practice, the ords depreciation and obsolescenc ave different meanings.

1. Depreciation in general terms relates to physical deterioration: loss due to wear and tear, disintegration, and the action of the elements.

2. Functional obsolescence is loss due to overcapacity, undercapacity, inadequacy, changes of process, location, etc.

3. Economic obsolescence is loss due to external economic forces, such as changes in the use of land, loation, zoning or other legislative enactments that might restrict or change property rights and values and other similar factors.

In appraising buildings for taxation purposes, the assessor should strive to arrive at the economic value of the improvement to the land. Actual depreciation depends upon three conditions: One, the type or kind of construction; two, the type of maintenance and repairs; three, replacements, restorations, or modernizations.

There are many methods used in arriving at the degree or the percent of the loss in value of buildings due to wear and tear and other causes. There are three common and prevailing methods in general use: One, the straight line method based on the premise that the loss in value occurs in equal annual amounts.

If the estimated useful life of a building is 50 years, then multiplying the age of the building by 2 for each year would result in the percentage of depreciation.

Another approach, the observed condition method, is based upon inspection of the building for the purpose of determining the degree of depreciation or the remaining useful life. Obviously the accuracy of this method depends entirely upon the training, experience and judgment of the valuator.

Generlaly a combination of the two methods is the more reliable.

The straight line method should be used only as a guide by the assessor to enable him to determine if maintenance, repairs, restorations and modernization has increased the value and life beyond the average expectancy, or if excessive wear and tear or neglect has lessened the value and life expectancy.

Each county auditor is required to decide the proper method to be used in his county and submit his method to the Board of Tax Appeal for its approval or disapproval.

RULE 111

TAX MAPS—All tax maps of the county shall be corrected and kept up-to-date. Tax maps should accurately indicate the area, acreage or dimensions of each lot, tract or parcel of land in the county, together with the name of the owner, and lot number. Municipal tax maps shall show the unit foot price on each street.

RULE 112 ..C

OLECT DATA RELATING TO VALUATION—Each auditor or a deputy should collect and analyze all information relating to the value of real property in his county, including accurate and reliable sales data, bids, asking prices, mortgages, rents, etc.

Sailor Injured While Near Home

BOSTON (AP)—James Cahill, 24, a sailor from Winthrop, came all the way from the West Coast to spend Christmas at home for the first time in four years.

As he headed for a subway station for the last four miles to his home, he was struck by a motorist, who failed to stop after the accident.

Later, he was transferred to the naval hospital in Chelsea, where doctors said they didn't think he could be released to be home for Christmas.

Buck Gridders Down To Business

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — After weekend sight-seeing, Ohio State's Buckeyes were set to start the business of intensive Rose Bowl drills today.

They posed for pictures and made a bus tour around the city yesterday, sandwiched in two hours of light contact work on East Los Angeles Junior College field and, later, took in a TV show.

Buckeye Coach Woody Hayes said the team will run through double practice sessions at the field today and tomorrow.

Steve Nagy Wins Ohio Bowling Title

BUCYRUS (AP) — Steve Nagy of Cleveland took the first annual Ohio State singles match game bowling championship last night, as he beat out fellow Clevelander, Al Novak, 4873-4860.

The championship was decided in the final frame of the 24th and final game when Nagy, needing 8 pins, spilled 9 and then spared to make his 13-pin victory lead.

Yuletide Lull Hits Program Among Boxers

NEW YORK (AP)—The Christmas week lull hits the boxing business this week with only a few promoters who have television contracts opening their doors.

Those two hardy Monday night rivals, Brooklyn's Eastern Parkway and New York's St. Nicholas Arena, continue on a normal basis but most of the others are closing up for the holidays.

Even Madison Square Garden will pass up the Friday shows both this week and next on Christmas Eve and New Year's Eve. The Saturday night fights are featuring amateurs.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner had to look around for a sub at Eastern Parkway tonight when Walter Cartier came down with a virus infection. He finally settled on Paul Pender, the ex - Marine from Boston, as an opponent for Ted Olla of Milwaukee in a 10-round middleweight match (ABC-TV).

St. Nicholas arena also has a sub in the main event in Pete Adams of Newark, N. J. against Jimmy Martinez of Phoenix, Ariz., in a 10-round welter match.

Adams, whose fingers were mashed so severely in an industrial accident that four had to be amputated, subs for Gerry Dreyer who was injured in training.

The 23-year-old Adams is one of a family of 21 children. He has a career record of 12-4-2 as compared to Martinez' 54-11-4.

The bout will be carried on network TV (Dumont).

Terrible Ted Lauded For '54 Comeback

NEW YORK (AP)—Ted Williams, who may not come back to baseball any more, was voted today as having made the greatest comeback of the 1954 season.

The 422 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the annual Associated Press poll spread their votes over 43 players.

Williams received 84 votes to Feller's 70. Vic Wertz, who did so well for Cleveland after the Indians had acquired him from Baltimore last June, was third with 52 votes. Joe Coleman, veteran Baltimore right-hander, was fourth with 39, and Sal Maglie, clutch right-hander of the New York Giants, was fifth with 29. Maglie led all National Leaguers on the comeback path.

The rest of the top 10 included Johnny Antonelli, Giants, 22; Larry Doby, Indians, 15; Marv Grissom, Giants, 13; Steve Gromek, Detroit Tigers, 11; and Jim Wilson, Milwaukee Braves, 8.

Those who voted for Williams obviously regarded the 36-year-old outfielder as still on the comeback trail although he returned from his second hitch with the Marines in August 1953. He went on a batting rampage in the closing months of the '53 season, hitting a blistering .407 in 37 games followed that up with a spectacular .345 campaign in '54.

Illini, Bucks, Purdue Pace Big Ten Race

CHICAGO (AP)—With the opening of the Big Ten title chase but a couple of holidays away, Illinois, Ohio State and Purdue have stamped themselves as title contenders.

Illinois, rated No. 3 in the Associated Press poll last week, and Ohio State are the only undefeated teams in the conference while Purdue has but one loss in six games.

The Boilermakers lost 69-68 to Penn, a team which has since bowled over Iowa and Michigan State.

The high - ranked, pre-season contenders, Iowa and Indiana, have been disappointing to say the least. Indiana, the defending champion, has been beaten three times, the final being a 97-65 humiliation at the hands of Cincinnati.

Iowa, meanwhile, has been beaten by Missouri in addition to Penn.

While the Hawkeyes could be experimenting to find a perfect combination for the conference race, the Hoosiers seem unable to make up the loss of three key players—Bob Leonard, Dick Farley and Chuck Kraak.

The Illini have won five straight. Among their opponents were Missouri, 77-49, Oklahoma AM, 59-53; and Notre Dame, 66-57.

While the Buckeyes have yet to score less than 90 points in four victories, they also have yet to limit the opposition to less than 80.

Mighty Utah Appears Tops Among College

No. 1 LaSalle Beaten By Utes As Western Team Works Smooth

The Associated Press

If there are any better ou than Utah in the college ba ball ranks at present, they be stand up and be counted.

The Utes brought a so-so mark into Madison Square Gar Saturday night and to everyo surprise proceeded to score a 7 victory over LaSalle, erstw NCAA champion and the natio No. 1 team in last week's A ciated Press poll.

Utah showed a relaxed, confid team, well coached and unawe the Explorers. They were in c mand for the greater share of final half after trailing 41-38 at intermission.

The Utes, though expert coached by Jack Gardner, the mer Kansas State mentor, w by no means a great team agai LaSalle. But they'll do until a ter one comes along.

Admittedly, LaSalle, with standout Tom Gola netting on points, might have experienced off night. But it's doubtful even a tip-top LaSalle club co have restrained the Utes. The U were so superior the result ca even be termed an upset, exc by way of excuse among the perts who delegated Utah to better than the No. 15 spot in rankings.

Whether Utah is actually as g as it looked should show u morrow night at Lexington, K when Utah runs up against K tucky, No. 2 in the nation, in first round of the Kentucky Invi tional Tournament.

Kentucky stayed among the beaten last week with a 79-61 l ing of Temple, the club that ended St. John's of Brooklyn week. It was the Wildcats' 2 consecutive victory.

Southern Cal won its fifth de sion in six over the weekend, ma ing New Mexico 103-39.

Another of the holiday tour ments gets under way today Oklahoma City with Oklaho ming, Houston, Tulsa, San Fra cisco, Wichita and host Oklaho City competing in the All-Colle shindig.

George Washington, unbea conqueror of highly rated D quesne for the Steel Bowl tit Wichita, among the Missouri V ley Conference favorites; S Francisco, a 56-44 winner ov previously unbeaten and eigh ranked UCLA Saturday; and Wy ming a possible sleeper that d feated St. Louis 74-68 over t weekend are the teams to watc

One other top-ranked team lowed the pattern of LaSalle a UCLA over the weekend as In ana (No. 7) looked anything but repeater in the Big Ten in a 97- loss to Cincinnati. It was t Hoosiers' third setback.

With only sixth-ranked Misso idle, the rest of the top 10 su vived the weekend. Illinois (No. added further proof that this is Notre Dame's year with its four straight victory, 66-57; North C lina State (No. 4) made it 8-0 w an 85-74 whipping of Texas Tec Dayton (No. 5) handed College Pacific its third defeat on an Eas ern tour, 73-66; and Niagara (N 10) bopped Toledo 80-61.

Monroe Squad Starting Lineup Has 5 Juniors

Monroe's Indians with an all juniors on the varsity scalped Saltcreek last Friday night for their first Pickaway County League win.

Coach Bill Wolfe's lads from up Five Points way may prove to be the 'spoilers" of the league. Not long ago they gave front running Williamsport quite a battle before running out of gas.

Stan Jones, 5' 11', is a high scoring forward. He has dumped 66 points through the hoops in four league contests, 11th highest in the county. He is a three-year varsity player and co-captain of the team.

Bill Cupp, the Indians' 6' center, is in his second season of varsity play. He is a good jump shot artist.

ANOTHER SECOND YEAR player is guard Dale Mowery Only 5' 8", is quite a ball hawk and very fast.

The other co-captain of the quintet is Dwight Miller. This 6' forward is a good rebound man and also in his second year of play.

Lions Edge Browns 14-10 In 'Meaningless' Battle

CLEVELAND (AP)—Buddy Parker's Detroit Lions defeated the Cleveland Browns for the seventh time in eight tries yesterday, and after the blizzard-swept game the rival coaches said:

Paul E. Brown — "We'd have liked a victory in that one, but we didn't get it."

Parker — "I wish that were the score of next Sunday's game."

The score was 14-10, and the Lions hit the airways for the come-from-behind touchdown in the last 50 seconds after it appeared the Browns had it wrapped up.

The game, except for the prestige involved, meant nothing, since each team had already clinched its division championship. It was a makeup tilt, postponed from Oct. 3, and served as a practice swing for next Sunday's clash between the same clubs for the world championship.

Most astounding thing about the game, played in deep snow which fell for hours before and during the game, was that Cleveland's vaunted passing attack, its most dangerous weapon, gained only four yards. Otto Graham completed only one of six tries.

But Detroit's Bobby Layne connected on 18 of 37 for 183 yards and both touchdowns. The first came on a 26-yarder to end Dorne Dibble to deadlock the game at 7-7 in the third quarter. Then Layne completed six of seven tries—four to Jug Girard for 56 yards—in the eight-play, 74-yard drive which won in the final minute. The payoff was an 11-yarder to Girard.

The Browns had the ball in Lion territory only twice, and they scored both times. The first time came in the opening minutes when fullback Bill Boman fumbled later Graham sneaked for the counter.

In the third period, after Detroit had tied it, Cleveland moved from the 20 to Detroit's 37. As the drive stalled, golden-toed Lou Groza backed up to the 43 and kicked his 16th field goal in 24 tries to put the Browns ahead 10-7.

Ohio Collegiate Cagers In Lull

COLUMBUS (AP)—This is the week of the "big lull" in Ohio's college basketball circles. Only seven games are on tap this week.

But the lull will be short as the collegiate tossers scatter in all directions for holiday tournaments during the Christmas - New Year's week. Heavy firing at home won't resume until Jan. 3.

Remaining unbeaten are Akron and Dayton tied with six in a row, Ohio State, Ohio Northern and Wooster with four straight, and Capital with three.

Furgol Collects Havana Torphy

HAVANA (AP) — Ed Furgol was off for a Florida rest cure for his ailing right arm today, packing along a $2,000 first prize check from the Havana Invitation Golf Tournament and his first victory since he won the National Open last June.

The Clayton, Mo., splinter, who has carried a withered left arm since a childhood accident, didn't seem to notice the injured right arm in the tourney windup yesterday. He shot a 67 over the par-72 Havana Country Club course, a 6,377-yard layout, for a 72-hole total of 273—15 strokes under par.

5 Persons Claim Captured Falcon

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Police captured a red-tailed falcon which had somehow flown into the psychiatry ward of the Salt Lake General Hospital. It was placed in the local zoo for safekeeping.

Yesterday, Zoo Director Robert H. Mattlin said a local newspaper story on the falcon had turned up five men who claimed to be its owners. He said he planned a "showup" today.

Columbus UAW OKs NAA Contract

COLUMBUS (AP)—Members of the CIO-United Auto Workers Union voted yesterday to accept a new contract covering some 16,000 workers at Columbus' North American Aviation, Inc., plant.

The new pact includes a 2 cent hourly wage boost which, added to a 3-cent cost-of-living allowance, gives North American workers wages ranging from $1.54 to $2.53 hourly.

City Man 'Living' Example Of What Blood Donations Can Do

Lauds Coming Of Bloodmobile To Circleville

40 Shrapnel Wounds Suffered By Boyer; Had 21 Transfusions

Boyer was wounded in Korea in 1952 and since has had 21 blood transfusions—a pint each time. A complete change of a human being's entire blood system requires 16 pints.

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be in Circleville Thursday. Boyer said that it should be everyone's duty to donate so that others might be alive to see another day, such as he was able to do.

The Bloodmobile will be located in front of the Methodist Church, Pickaway and Main Streets. It will be open from 10:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.

THE WOUNDED ex-master sergeant of the famed Second Infantry Division made it clear that he is very grateful for the anonymous donors who made it possible for him to tell the story. He added, however, that the blood is used for many non-war patients as well.

Boyer said that perhaps his story will help increase the number of blood donors in Pickaway County—a number which has dwendled dangerously low on a number of occasions.

Although Boyer was born and raised in Ross County, he has worked and lived in and around Pickaway County. The 27-year old decorated vet of World War II and the Korean mess is married and lives at 650 E. Ohio St.

He spent four years in the Army from 1942 to 1946, with duty in the Far East. Upon discharge, Boyer went back to his native love of farming.

On May 28, 1948 he re-enlisted back into the Army. Because of his previous experience, he soon rose to the rank of a six striper and was sent over to Korea.

FOUR MONTHS after he arrived in the battle zone he was wounded. He and six others went out to "secure" a valley near Pin Point Ridge, in north Korea.

But the enemy apparently had the valley "zeroed in'. Suddenly, mortar shells began to lob in and the seven me began to dig in and return the fire.

One mortar shell found its mark on Boyer. He received 40 pieces of shrapnel in both legs, his back and neck. Although he was wounded on Oct. 16, he did not ragain consciousness for a week.

WHEN BOYER finally woke up, he was in Camp Drew Hospital near Tokyo. He went through five operations on his right leg alone.

Boyer found out that the all-day shelling took a heavy toll. Of the seven men who went out only one was not hurt. The remaining five, including Boyer, were either wounded or killed.

Approximately 60 rounds of mortar shells were fired at the Americans. Boyer was in a fox hole when he was hit.

The entire knee joint of his right leg has been completely removed. Bones in that leg have been replaced with steel plates, tubes and eight stainless steel screws.

BOYER MUST WEAR a brace on his right leg for the rest of his life. He has to rely on a cane many times. But he wants no sympathy—in reality, he deserves admiration.

"If not for the 21 pints of blood I received,' he declared, "I would not be here today. I believe everyone should not hesitate to donate.

"You never know when or where that blood might come in handy. You can give a pint today—tomorrow you might be the one who needs a pint of blood as the result of an accident."

HE ADDED that people take the blood donor program too much for granted. He remarked that people read about the Bloodmobile in the newspaper and then throw the paper away and forget about it.

Boyer is now attending business College in Chillicothe. He hopes to to into bookkeeping or accounting when he graduates from school. He and the former Joann Cook have been married 15 months.

His decorations and ribbons number a "mere" 11. He only lacks the Congressional Medal of Honor to complete the "circuit of medals"

He received the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for bravery. He modestly says he does not know why they gave him that.

Boyer was also awarded the Silver Star, third highest award. Next in order, he has the Bronze Star with a cluster, signafying a second award for that medal. And for his wounds, he received the Purple Heart.

Here is a "living" reason why the blood donor program in Pickaway County should flow over the top.

NEW YORK (AP)—The present method of showing television pictures on the face of a big cathode ray tube now has been outmoded in the laboratory.

The set of the future will show its picture on a set of any size you choose that can be hung on the wall like a picture or made into a panel in the wall. It may be a few years more in reaching the practical stage for home sets, but two big companies report their laboratories have cracked through the barrier of "light amplification" that has baffled scientists for generations.

Both Radio Corp. of America and General Elecric Co. say they have developed methods of amplifying light in a manner similar to that in which sound now can be amplified.

The viewing screen will contain phosphor crystals similar to those on the face of the viewing tube of your present TV set. But the picture will be produced by passing electrical current directly through the phosphors, instead of the present method of bombarding the phosphors with a stream of electronics from an electron "gun" in the back end of a cathode ray tube. The principle is applicable for color TV as well as black and white.

RCA's Board Chairman David Sarnoff announced in 1951 that he had assigned to the company's staff the task of solving the problem of light amplification and several other companies were known to have been working on similar projects. However, news that they had solved the basic problem came somewhat earlier than expected.

The development by RCA was announced in Sarnoff's yearend statement while GE sent out invitations for a press demonstration tomorrow.

Says Sarnoff:

'Eventually, through the use of electronic light, the present television picture tube will be replaced by a thin, flat picture screen on the wall, or it may be a decorative easel-like framewhich, being portable, can be moved from room to room. Each screen will be under complete control of a little box—the size of a jewel case. No electron tubes will be used, only tiny transistors."

GE says picture-on-the-wall TV is only one of the possible future uses of direct light amplification and that "it also may be useful in X-ray fluroscopy, photography, and for seeing-in-the-dark devices."

Vandalia Sewer Bills Marked Paid

DAYTON (AP)—The Board of Public Affairs at nearby Vandalia says it can't give residents a permanent cut in sewer bill rates, but it can give them a Christmas present—by marking all fourth-quarter bills paid.

The board said the gift will cost Vandalia about $6,000 and will save sewer system users an average of $9 each.

Small Investor Now Looks For Solid Stocks

Brokerages Report Small Fry Seeking Long-Haul Investment

NEW YORK (AP)—'The public is back in the stock market"—you hear that on all sides today.

This is doubtless true—if you use the term "in the stock market" in a different sense than in 1929.

Although small investors are unquestionably patronizing stock brokers boardrooms again, looking for a fast buck, there is still a larger group of the public buying stocks for keeps — the new type of investor.

Brokers say that this time, unlike 1929, people so far are more inclined to buy for the long pull—interested in building up future income or an estate for their families. Twenty five years ago the big idea was to buy into the market 'on a hot tip" and unload on late comers for a fast profit.

Interest in stocks is spreading. But, so far, for every one who is buying some shares in American industry there are at least 10 persons who are talking about stocks and showing great interest in the course of stock prices—and, as of now, mostly taking it out in talk.

All of this applies to "the public"—not to the professional stock trader. The pro is in and out of the market constantly, taking advantage of each jiggle in prices, of the rumors, of the news breaks that influence psychology.

Buying on margin has increased a little in recent weeks, as the volume of stock trading has grown. But brokers say that most buying is still done on a cash basis and not on the credit shoestring which hallmarked the 1929 boom.

Margin rules now require that purchasers put up at least half of the price of the stock in cash—whereas in 1929 many traders were doing the biggest share of their plunging strictly on the cuff.

A four million share day now is evidence of the public's reawakening interest in the stock market. But take into consideration the much larger total of outstanding shares today compared with 25 years ago, and trading loses much of its significance.

A corporation's reputation and the chances of future growth in asset value are still the top selling points in stocks with the public, brokers say, citing the continuing interest in blue chip shares even at today's high prices.

As a stock's price rises, there is a drop in yield—the ratio of the dividend you get to the price you pay for a share now. As the prices of blue chip stocks have soared, this yield has fallen pretty low in many cases.

But the public goes on buying. Partly this is due to relief that the once feared recession turned out to be unexpectedly mild. Partly it's due to belief that a soundly based prosperity lies ahead. And perhaps it's partly due to the fact that the public, so badly burned in the 1929 stock market debacle, now feels that stock exchange regulations and the new look in corporate management practices spells greater safety for the investor in shares in American industries.

Brokers add that some of the public interest in stocks could be traced to recent tax law revisions that give some measure of tax relief on income from dividends. But they all admit, also, that perhaps the biggest factor right now is a psychological one.

The public loves a bull market. It gets out of a bear market—often without its shirt. But when the bulls take over the arena, the public becomes one big mass of aficionados.
